AGED MAN IS CAR CRASH VICTIM

"Our Town"
by
J. B. WHITE

The increasing number of organizations whose aim it is to have people walk a mental goose-step puzzles us. The desire for a harmony that actually means 100 per cent-ism is all out of focus with the historic past of our own country. The founding father breathed the very air of controversy. The young nation waxed fat on dissent.

There are various kinds of harmony.

There is the harmony of the graveyard, of the home for the feeble-minded and the indigent.

There is the harmony of the modern dictatorships where yes-yes is the only comment heard.

There was the famous harmony (peace) of imperial Rome clamped on a rebellious people by the legionnaires.

Real harmony prevails where individual freedom also prevails. Where truth is followed to its logical end. Where there is fair play, good will and breadth of viewpoint.

Real harmony rules when men have the sense to see that no one little brain can possibly contain all the knowledge there is and that often those who differ from us are our own best guides if only the mind is open.

There are two types of men who go to their work every morning.

There are two types of women who remain at home to order domestic affairs.

There are two types of children who leave these homes for the schoolroom.

There are two types of citizens made up of these men, women and children. And thus are two elements in every community. There are those who drag and those who dance.

Or, as the poet has put it, "the people who lift and the people who lean."

Obviously those who enter the happy dance of the hours get more out of existence than those who are dragged along by the eager pressing crowds.

A man should think of his day's work ended as another mile in the journey over the road to happiness. Stevenson once referred to the illusion of possession when he wrote, "It is better to travel hopefully than to arrive."

But the person who plods along has neither the spirit of hope nor the stimulation of a destination.

The feeling of contentment is, in healthy minds, inseparable from the sense of adventure.

That morning when Christopher Columbus came in sight of land that turned out to be a continent until then unknown to the peoples of the Easter Hemisphere—unless we recognize as history the traditions concerning earlier voyages of the Vikings—was a glad moment for the navigator. Many troubles dropped from his shoulders.

There may be cynics among us who will say that at that moment began those other troubles which now rest on our shoulders. But this is just wisecracking, and does not lessen one whit the achievement of the great Italian navigator who made his supreme effort under Spanish auspices. Human blessings are apt to be accompanied by human troubles. The latter may be the salt that savors the former.

Anyway October 12 is Columbus Day. Four hundred and forty-four years ago land was sighted from the little ships that composed Columbus' fleet. This land is now the home of what many acclaim as the greatest nation in the world. Just what constitutes greatness may invite wide differences of opinion. However, that may be, our observance of Columbus Day is a justifiable matter of pride with many of our citizens.

Raby Hill Asks Change of Venue

Raby Hill, under 99 year sentence for murder in connection with the slaying of George Richards here in 1935, has filed a motion for a change of venue through his attorneys, John Watson and DeWitt Bowmer.

The hearing is set for 2 p. m. Thursday in District Court before Judge Graham Gillis.

Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp said he would not contest the motion. Camp secured a conviction in District Court with the jury debating at length on the death sentence. The case was reversed and remanded on misconduct of the jury after it had received the evidence and began deliberation.

Mr. Camp declared late Wednesday that he will follow this case into the court of transfer and prosecute Hill vigorously under the charges that brought about his conviction here in October, 1935.

Sandwiches and coffee will be served to the public from eleven o'clock Saturday morning until two o'clock Saturday afternoon to celebrate the opening.

The Buckhorn Cafe will specialize in beer, wines, confections, and short orders with private booths to assure private dining.

JOE HORELICA DIES AT NORMAN VALLEY

Joe Horelica, age 58, died at his home at Norman Valley Monday afternoon about 2 o'clock. Funeral services were held from St. Monica's Catholic Church in Cameron Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with Rev. Father George Apel conducting the services. Interment was made in St. Monica's cemetery with Green's Funeral home in charge.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Melvin Offield, Mrs. Joe Kovar, Mrs. C. D. Raby and 5 sons: Will Albert, Frank, Alvin and Joe, Jr.

WOMAN AND CHILD ARE CRASH VICTIMS

Mrs. Walter Burnie of Rockdale and her 4 year old son were victims of a hit and run driver who has been charged with driving while intoxicated and failing to render aid, according to Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp.

H. W. Goodwin of Franklin has been charged in two cases and bond fixed at $1000 in each case. Mr. Camp said.

The accident occurred 100 yards east of the city limits of Rockdale on the cement highway. The four year old son of Mrs. Burnie suffered a broken leg. Mrs. Burnie was cut and bruised from the impact.

The Goodwin car, according to Mr. Camp, crashed into the Burnie machine which was knocked into a ditch. Goodwin kept driving and when arrested by Constable W. C. Colvin said he had been hit by another car. Down the highway a half mile or more the Burnie machine was found with its victims badly injured. Goodwin claimed when arrested the car that struck him did not stop.

A pint of liquor was taken from the car driven by Goodwin. He was arrested and placed in jail and charged with failing to stop and render aid and driving while drunk.

Mr. Camp, passing through Rockdale on his way to Cameron entered immediately into the case and obtained all necessary evidence to base charges he has filed.

Chas. F. Green To Continue Sale For Closeout of Goods

Charles F. Green announces that the sale which opened in the furniture store of C. N. Green & Son Store on last Friday morning will continue until all items of furniture have been closed out.

Mr. Green purchased the stocks through the court and is closing out the furniture and hardware merchandise. He plans to move his cash grocery into the corner building as soon as the stocks have been cleared out.

The store has been doing a brisk business all the week with a big day on Friday which was opening date. "I am well pleased with the sale, and certainly appreciate the response to our advertising. We will continue to sell this merchandise at below cost until it is closed out," said Mr. Green.

ANNUAL PICNIC AT BURLINGTON SUNDAY

The day will begin with a parade in the afternoon through the streets of the town. At Burlington Hall lunch will be served. It will be one of those famous dinners for which the community is famous and plenty of Burlington hospitality thrown in to make the people welcome.

There will be a number of entertainment features during the afternoon. Chief among the interesting features will be the annual cotton auction which will bring hundreds to the afternoon program. At night supper will be served and a dance will follow in the Hall.

A cordial invitation is extended to the people of this section to attend the program and supper.

MARBLE MACHINES IN PLACES AGAIN AFTER INJUNCTION GRANTED

Marble machines ousted at midnight on September 31st in Cameron and throughout Milam County, were back again Saturday when Judge Fountain Kirby of Groesbeck, granted an injunction restraining the authorities from stopping their operation in the county.

Action that led to the injunction was brought by W. B. Denson and H. P. Culpepper of the Milam Music Company, operating the tables in Milam County. Mr. Camp was not aware of the proceedings until he received a telegram from Groesbeck.

The injunction restrains Mr. Camp and Sheriff Kennedy from filing cases or bringing about prosecution, if they so elected, in this county.

The motion is set for hearing on Monday October 19th and Mr. Camp (Continued on page 6)

Cameron Firemen Plan Year's Work

The volunteer firemen of the city of Cameron met last Monday night with the largest attendance on record this year.

Under the direction of Emory B. Camp, president of the organization, ways and means of obtaining revenue for entertainments were discussed.

Norris Weems, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Weems, was elected mascot of the organization, to replace Frank Richter, Jr., who was accepted as a member of the fire department Monday night.

STRONG TEAM IS EXPECTED

Facing a hard schedule for the remainder of the conference year, Yoemen were digging in for the winter.

Coach Wood knowing the strength of the Georgetown Eagles was giving his charges the best possible preparation for the second hurdle of the flag race here Friday night when the Eagles again set foot on the historic sod of Yoemen field. Coming through their first conference hurdle with flying colors the Yoemen were a bit pepped up and may be inclined to give the Eagles the traditional underestimation, but Georgetown, although losing to Rosebud this year, has one of the best teams in the conference. Certainly the Eagles should give the Yoemen a hard battle for the honors Friday night.

Indications were the new stadium seats would not be in place for the game. And barring injuries in scrimmage last week, the team should be in first rate order, barring the loss of Earl Peck, star backfield man who was critically injured in the game against Caldwell on September 26th. Peck, badly clipped in that game, may not be able to start.

However, Coach Wood has closed up the gaps and made the best of the situation and has a few ace backs who can carry on their part of the load in the backfield.

To The Schools

This week the Herald is being mailed to all the schools in Milam County, a policy the publishers established in 1935. Many of the schools expressed their appreciation. Some sent in their community news. Remember The Herald is published to serve you and its liberal policy is extended to public as well as religious schools.

CITY STREETS GET NEW PARKING LANES

The painting of new parking angles began here Monday and will continue until the lines are completed throughout the city. Since the painting can be done only in the early hours of the morning it will require several days to complete the job.

Gene Smith, City Marshal, announced that motorists must observe the parking angles and park within them. This will prevent close parking and at the same time provide more parking space, thus eliminating a large percentage of the traffic hazards in the city on Saturdays.

THEM-Yoemen

(By the Peeping Reporter)

L. C. Wood, master of the maroon and grey, is still searching his squad for a passer and so far he has not found one. Joe McLean has his best bet at the opening of the season, but Joe seems to be "chanking" the ball instead of passing it. He still insists on forcing the boys to turn around to catch his passes—and they're pretty wobbly too. If Coach Wood didn't find a passer this week, it looks like the Yoemen are sure to be grounded against the Georgetown eleven here tomorrow night.

Coach Wood stated "The Thrall game was not up to the Caldwell standard and if we had had any opposition at all, we would have been beat." The games with Marlin, Caldwell and Thrall didn't force the Yoemen to do what they are capable of doing.

Joe McLean's passing in the Thrall game looked good and worked perfectly but had Thrall had a boy in the backfield that knew the first principle (Continued on page 6)

MURDER CHARGES ARE FILED FOLLOWING DEATH OF T. H. SHELTON HERE

T. H. Shelton, 60, died at 3 a. m. in a local city hospital, a victim of injuries sustained around midnight Saturday when his car was crashed by another machine on the highway between Milano and Rockdale.

Emory Davenport, held by officers on a charge of driving while intoxicated and failing to stop and render aid, was formally charged with murder by Criminal District Attorney Emory B. Camp, here Wednesday.

According to the statement of the District Attorney, who had followed his policy of getting on the job quickly in criminal offense cases, the accident occurred around midnight Saturday. The crash occurred almost at the identical spot where another driver smashed the auto of Mrs. Walter Burnie of Rockdale on the same night, breaking the leg of her 4 year old son who rode with her.

Arrested at Dance

Davenport was placed under arrest at a dance near Rockdale later in the night by Constable Will Colvin and City Marshal Charlie Landis of Rockdale. Shelton was rushed to Cameron for treatment. He was suffering concussion of the brain, fractured skull and internal hemorrhages resulted from his injuries.

According to Mr. Camp the car owned by Davenport was driven down the highway a short distance and that Davenport refused to pick up the aged man who lay bleeding from the impact. Mr. Camp said Davenport went on to the dance and there was arrested after he had engaged in a quarrel with another young man.

The body of the aged crash victim was taken to his home in Rockdale Wednesday and funeral arrangements had not been announced here.

INJURED; MAY DIE

Rev. Moises Robledo, pastor of the Mexican First Baptist Church in Cameron, was not expected to live through the night Wednesday. He lies critically injured at a local hospital as the result of an auto accident Saturday night on the highway leading to Buckholts.

While attempting to pass a parked truck, the Robledo car crashed head-on with another machine driven by H. F. Glaser. The accident was said to be unavoidable.

Truck Parked on Road

Rev. Robledo and wife were on their way to Cameron when the crash occurred. The pastor's neck was broken in two places and he was otherwise injured. Mrs. Robledo sustained a broken nose.

Both cars attempted to pass the parked truck at the same moment and neither driver was aware of the danger until too late to avoid the crash.

E. D. Parnell, teacher of vocational agriculture, said the dinner would be served beginning at 7 p. m. The public is cordially invited to buy these plates and honor the team which leaves here on Friday October 16th for Kansas City.

Courageous in the face of frigid waters and terrific tides, Paul Chotteau, French swimmer, is pictured pausing, for liquid refreshment as he swam 41 miles across the treacherous Catalina channel to a point near Topanga canyon on the Southern California coast. He set a record of 33 hours, 44 minutes for the grueling test. This was his seventh attempt in two years.

Explaining Amendments To Be Voted on Nov. 2 By the People of Texas; Giving In Detail Meaning of Proposed Changes in Constitution of the State

S. J. R. NO. 3-A

The first proposed Constitutional Amendment to face the voter on November 3rd is S. J. R. No. 3-A which provides for a State dispensary system to have exclusive sale of distilled liquors and all profits from the sale of such liquors would go to the State. The sale of spirituous distilled liquors for private profit, as is now the case, is prohibited within this state, by this amendment, except when such sale is made to the State, according to B. P. Matocha, Secretary of State. It is further provided that the State of Texas shall have the exclusive right to purchase at wholesale and to sell at retail such distilled spirituous liquors. Such sale shall be made only in unbroken packages and no such liquors shall be consumed on the premises where sold. The difference between the proposed plan and that now in effect would simply be one of ownership—i. e. by the State rather than the individual.

The State would maintain various places of business for the purpose of the sale of such liquor direct to the consumer. These places of business would be maintained in the counties, precincts or incorporated towns where by local option elections such sale has been made legal.

Local option as now in effect would not be changed by adoption of the amendment. The sale of alcoholic beverages containing not more than 3.2 per cent alcohol which has been legalized in such political subdivisions shall not be prohibited by this section.

This Amendment further provides that the open saloon shall not be re-established.

It is also provided in this Amendment that the Legislature shall have the power to regulate the sale for private profit and possession of distilled liquors for medicinal, scientific and mechanical purposes.

S. J. R. NO. 18

Proposal No. 2 effecting a change in the State Constitution is S. J. R. No. 18 providing that the Legislature shall have the right to levy taxes to provide a Retirement Fund for school teachers and persons employed in public schools, colleges and universities, supported wholly or partly by the State.

According to the interpretation of Secretary of the State, B. P. Matocha, it is provided that the State shall contribute to such Retirement Fund an amount equal to that paid for the same purpose from the income of each such person. It is a matching plan. Each person so employed in such State schools, colleges and universities will likely be required to set aside so much of their salary and the State will set aside a like amount. This Amendment further provides that the amount contributed to such Retirement Fund by the State shall not exceed at any time per cent of the compensation paid to each such person by the State or school district, and shall not be more than One Hundred Eighty Dollars for any person in one year.

Must Teach 20 Years

No person shall be eligible for a pension under this Amendment who has not taught twenty years in the State of Texas, but those who retire before they have taught for a period of twenty years in this State and who have been contributing to the Retirement Fund shall be entitled to a refund of all moneys paid into the fund.

All funds provided from the compensation of said persons, or by the State, for such Retirement Fund, as are received by the Treasury of the State of Texas, shall be invested in bonds of the United States, the State of Texas, or counties or cities of this State, or in bonds issued by any agency of the United States Government, the payment of the principal of and interest on which is guaranteed by the United States Government.

Persons who are recipients of pensions from such Retirement Fund shall not be eligible for any other pension retirement funds or direct aid from the State.

Comment on other amendments will be published in subsequent issues.

Long distance rates reduced

7 TIMES in 10 years

1926	1927	1929	1930	1935	1936
OCTOBER 1, rates reduced on calls over 150 miles	DECEMBER 1, rates reduced on all calls over 150 miles	FEBRUARY 1, rates reduced on calls between 100 and 149 miles	JANUARY 1, rates reduced on calls between 56 and 318 miles	JUNE 1, reduced night rates moved forward from 8:30 p. m. to 7 p. m.	JANUARY 15, reductions on Sunday calls, and person-to-person calls after 7 p. m.

And now...

SEPTEMBER 1, 1936: Reduced rates on calls over 234 miles and reduced person-to-person overtime rates after 3 minutes of overtime.

In 1926, a person-to-person long distance telephone call between New York and San Francisco cost $20.60 at any hour. Six minutes were required to make the connection.

Today—1936—the same call may be made for only $6.75 at night, or any time on Sunday. You are connected in less than a minute and a half, on the average.

This wide difference between the long distance rates of yesterday and today is the result of seven voluntary rate reductions made in the past ten years.

It illustrates a Bell System policy in action—the policy of voluntarily reducing rates when it can be done.

YOEMEN TAKE CONFERENCE OPENER FROM THRALL

Backs Run Wild and Score Four Touchdowns; Forward Passing Attack Spectacular

Inspired with the glory of football and confident of victory, the Cameron Yoemen pushed across the goal defended by Thrall here Friday night four times and kicked two goals to defeat the Williamson County eleven by a score of 26 to 0 in the first conference game of the season.

The Yoemen line, led by Luther Poole and Herman Gerick held a sturdy barrier of defense, refusing to allow Thrall to score, while Heath at center and Turner in the back field foiled a would be effective aerial attack. McLean and Underwood, Yoemen backs, led the running attack with a series of off tackle and end runs that piled up yardage and first downs. McLean and Underwood worked the best aerial attack Yoemen fans have witnessed this season. Time after time the McLean-Underwood passing combination completed forward passes that completely baffled the Thrall back field.

Score in Second

The Yoemen scored one touchdown in the second quarter, two in the third and one in the fourth. The attempt to kick the goal after the two first touchdowns failed but the last two were good. Joe McLean summed up his series of beautiful runs when he broke loose and ran 65 yards for a touch down in the last two minutes of the game.

Thrall kicked off to Cameron. Joe McLean received the ball on his 10 yard line and ran it back to his 24 yard line where he fumbled, but the ball was recovered by Gerick.

Cameron's Ball

McLean started the game with a powerful drive over right tackle, gaining 4 yards. He was stopped by Harper. In the next play Turner tested the Thrall line at center and was thrown for a 5 yard loss, after which McLean gained five yards around left end.

With 5 yards to go for first down, McLean got off a beautiful spiral punt down to Thrall's 44 yard line where the ball was killed by Poole, the big Yoemen lineman.

Thrall's Ball

Jackson tried center of the Yoemen line but was stopped by Guess before he could gain one yard. Simmons followed with another attempt at center, gaining 3 yards. After Stiles failed to pass to Jackson, Kreeg kicked out of bounds on Cameron's 10 yard line.

Cameron's Ball

McLean took the pass from center and crashed the Thrall line for a 4 yard gain. Turner then tried center for only a yard gain, after which McLean kicked to Simmons who returned the ball to his own 45 yard line.

Thrall's Ball

A short forward pass from Stiles to Simmons was complete and good for two yards. Jackson then picked up 4 yards at center, followed by a beautiful run through center and a first down with Stiles carrying the ball.

Stiles tried center but was stopped by Poole and Hatch. The next play was a long forward pass from Jackson to Kreeg, good for 15 yards and a first down for Thrall.

Stiles failed to gain at center, Cameron was penalized and the play went over. Jackson then plunged the line but was stopped by Poole and Gerick before hardly a yard was gained. On the next play Heath, center, intercepted a pass and was tackled on his own 20 yard line.

Cameron's Ball

McLean was stopped by Stiles after gaining 4 yards at center. McLean again took the pass from center and picked up a yard over left guard, after which he ran for a first down after faking a kick. He was brought down by Streit, a Thrall end.

Turner drove through center of the line and ran 7 yards before he was stopped by Streit and Jackson. Following this play, McLean passed to Lange. It was complete and good for 15 yards and a first down, but Cameron was penalized 15 yards for clipping.

McLean passed again, this time to Underwood. It was complete and good for another first down. With the ball on Cameron's 40 yard line, Turner took the ball and gained 2 yards over left guard. In the next play a flat zone pass from McLean to Lange was complete and good for a 6 yard gain as the first quarter ended.

SECOND QUARTER

Cameron's Ball

McLean led off with a powerful plunge into the Thrall line but failed to gain, but followed up with a run around right end that was good for a first down. McLean again took the ball and picked up 6 yards over right tackle. He was stopped by Cain. McLean then attempted a pass to Kennon which was incomplete. Again McLean took the ball, gaining 2 yards at center. He was stopped by Johnson and Jackson. On the last down, McLean passed to Stewart but the ball was out of reach and incomplete.

Thrall's Ball

Jackson took the pass from center and drove through the line for a two yard gain. He was stopped hard by Hatch. Jackson again tried the line but for no gain, after which he passes to Streit, which was complete and good for only one yard. On the last down, Kreeg kicked out of bounds on Thrall's 40 yard line.

Cameron's Ball

Kennon took the first pass from center and picked up 3 yards on a reverse play. He was stopped by Cain and Johnson. McLean then took the ball for a 3 yard gain over right tackle after which Turner ran for a first down.

On a spin play, Underwood got the ball, circled wide around left end, and ran 33 yards for a touchdown. Cameron attempted to kick the goal for an extra point but failed, making the score 6 to 0 in Cameron's favor.

Cameron kicked off to Thrall. Swenson received the ball and ran about 5 yards before he was brought down by Mode.

Thrall's Ball

With the ball on Thrall's 35 yard line, Hatch avoided Johnson's interference and brought him down for a two yard loss. Johnson again took the ball, gaining 2 yards at center. On the next play, which was a fake, Gerick slipped through the Thrall line and threw Jackson for a slight loss. Kreeg then kicked out of bounds on the 50 yard line.

Cameron's Ball

Turner tried the line but failed to gain. Following Turner, Underwood took the ball, he got loose and raced 40 yards down the field before he was brought down by Simmons on Thrall's 10 yard line. But Cameron was penalized and the ball was brought back to Cameron's 35 yard line. The next play was a pass from McLean to Underwood, which was complete and good for 4 yards. McLean then kicked and the ball was killed on Thrall's 2 yard line by Poole, but Thrall drew a penalty, giving Cameron a first down.

Underwood demonstrated another feat of speed when he took the pass for center and ran 38 yards, but Cameron was penalized and the play went over, with McLean gaining 8 yards around right end. The next play was a pass from McLean to Lange which was complete and good for 2 yards and a first down. Turner then took the ball and failed to gain at center. This play was followed by a reverse play in which Underwood got the ball and ran for a first down. McLean then attempted a forward pass to Underwood but it was out of reach and incomplete as the first half ended.

SECOND HALF

Cameron kicked off to Thrall. Poole kicked to Addison, who received the ball on his 20 yard line and returned it only one yard.

Thrall's Ball

On the first play which was a lateral pass from Jackson to Ramseur, Gerick rushed in and threw Ramseur for an eight yard loss. Jackson then picked up 4 yards through the center of the line. Jackson then attempted a pass to Ramseur which was incomplete which was followed by Kreeg kicking out of bounds on Thrall's 34 yard line.

Cameron's Ball

McLean picked up 8 yards around right end. He was stopped by Jackson. McLean then attempted a pass to Lange but it was incomplete. On the third down, McLean took the pass from center and ran 11 yards making a first down for Cameron.

McLean took the ball for a 5 yard gain over right tackle. He was tackled by Jackson. Underwood then dashed around right end for a five yard gain and a first down. Following Underwood, McLean broke thru the line and ran 9 yards before he was taken by Jackson. The next play was a pass from McLean to Lange which was incomplete. Again McLean took the ball, drove through the line and across the goal, making the score Cameron 12, Thrall 0.

Poole kicked off to Thrall, Jackson received the ball on his 30 yard

Editorial

Probably everyone has heard of or known of someone who dropped out of school rather early in his high school career. There are many reasons why one should want to quit;
but, one of the most common ones
is that studies became rather tedious.
Many remedies may be found for this circumstance, but one of the best way to break the tediousness of school work is to become a member of a school club. If you want to be a live wire instead of an indifferent sort of person, why not join one of the many clubs in our school.

The excuse cannot be that there are not any interesting clubs in our school. We have a Dramatic Club, a Press Club, a Spanish Club, Future
Farmers, an H. E. Club, and the Debate Club. Think it over, and the more you think, the more you'll like it. Be lively and join a club!

Band Uniforms Are Here For Thrall Games on Friday

They're here at last—the band uniforms. Sixty-two military uniforms in maroon and blue-gray, with Sam
Brown belts, and sixty-two military caps with plumes have arrived and are ready for use in Friday's game with Thrall.

Ralph Mayfield, drum major, wears a maroon and white uniform with blue-gray plumes. The uniform worn by the band sweetheart, Ruth Hobson, is a dress in military style, with maroon stripes down the skirt and a military cap with maroon balls.

The banners are expected later.

Beruma Marie Miles went to Calvert over the week end.

Juanita Thomas and Allan Horstmann, ex-students of Yoe High, who are attending Southwestern, were home last week end.

With their national contest less than two weeks away, the Cameron Future Poultry judging team is doing intensive training in preparation for the big event that is to be held at Kansas City October 19.

To Louis Jurcak, high scorer at the State Contest, and Roy Mabry, fifth high in the same contest, will be given the honor of representing Texas in the nation-wide event. Nolan Butler, a member of the state winning team, will not judge at Kansas City, as two and not three boys make a team in a National contest. Butler is expected to make the trip, however. John William Baldwin, alternate on the team, has been working out regular during the summer and fall months, with the hopes of making the trip with the team.

Last Saturday the team was taken to Brenham and College Station for training work in preparation for the contest. Tuesday they went to College Station, where they worked on the A. & M. College flock and Saturday they will judge at Waco, E.
D. Parnell, coach, reports.

Additional training will be received at the Texas Centennial in Dallas and at Oklahoma A. & M. College at Stillwater.

The team members will leave Cameron October 16 and return October 21 or 22. While in Kansas City the boys will attend sessions of the National Convention of Future Farmers of America.

Baptist Direct Chapel Program

The First Baptist Church had charge of the assembly program
Wednesday morning. Rev. Vernor G.
Miles, pastor of the church, addressed the student body on the topic
"Goals in Life."

Misses Velma Reese and Wenonah
Slaughter, former students of Yoe
High School, sang two numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Francis Cox.
Elizabeth Sprott played a piano solo, and Tom Hobson played a cornet solo, accompanied by Ruth Hobson at the piano.

Bennie Bailey has returned to school this week.

Following The Team Around

The Yoemen had shown little improvement after their first two games when the clash with the Thrall Tigers began Friday night. The entire team was slow and showed little spirit, and as a result, was almost swept off its feet during the first quarter by the hard fighting Tigers.
However, it recovered in the third quarter and drove two touchdowns across the Thrall goal line. The offensive blocking was done by Luie Turner who played a fine game for the Maroon team.

The Yoemen play the Georgetown
Eagles Friday night. The Eagles showed up well in their opening game by holding Rosebud 12 to 18. This team ended up one above the cellar last year, and they are out to give trouble to anybody. We'll say 18 to 0 in favor of the Maroon and Gray.

The B Squad played their first game Tuesday September 29, against Oenaville. The invaders ran riot against the fresh and bewildered Yoellets, who made first downs while their opponents rolled up points.

Watch this column for accurate score predictions.

B Squad Defeated By Visiting Team

The B Squad played a game against Oenaville Tuesday night at 8 p. m., the score being 32 to 0 in favor of the visitors. Stars were Nabours,
Lucas, Dees, Baldwin, Stach, Gann,
Jett, Barrett and Tallent. Coach
Ruggles had a good team but it is a little light. As usual, the first string put on a show as pep squad, the leaders being Poole and Underwood.

Dana Kestenbaum went to Waco
September 26 and plans to go to Austin next week.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On Saturday afternoon October 3, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Beard of Conoley was the scene of a very rare and beautiful occasion when Mr. and Mrs. Beard celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary and at the same time the marriage of two of their grand children was performed in a double ceremony.

The home, a very attractive country place, is set on a spacious, beautifully kept lawn, that extends well to the back and to a large lake at the rear of the house. This garden spot was an ideal setting for the occasion, with an improvised altar of golden rods arranged in pedestal baskets with a large wisteria as a background.

First came Mr. and Mrs. Beard to have their marriage vows renewed after 50 years of happy married life. The bride was gowning in a powder blue crepe dress and wore dark accessories. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jackson who have been married seventy years. Mrs. Jackson also wore a dress of light blue with dark accessories, and each wore corsages in harmonizing shades. Following this was the approach of Miss Verna Beard and Mr. Elmo Bauerfehloe and Miss Alice Survant and Mr. Angus Davis. Rev. Walter L. Willis in a most impressive manner read the ring ceremony. Miss Beard wore a beautiful model of brown crepe with brown accessories and a corsage in golden tints.

Miss Survant was attractive in a suit of grey with accessories of new blue, the shades her grandmother wore on her wedding day, 50 years ago. They were attended by Miss Gloria Survant and Edwin Fullick and Miss Lillie Dale Fullick and Jack Sadderwhite. Following the ceremony guests were invited into the home where punch was served from a table decorated with sunburst roses in shades of gold and bronze and on the dining table which was laid with lace over yellow satin, rested a four tiered wedding cake decorated in gold with miniature bride and groom at the altar. After congratulations and good wishes guests were invited to stroll to the lake front where a real wedding feast awaited. Long tables were laid and the arrangement perfect for such an occasion, where barbeque and many other well prepared foods were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Beard have meant much in the history of Milam county. As citizens worthy of all the kind words spoken to them on this occasion, they also have a heritage that will remain, that of a family of citizens whose upright and honorable lives make for the world a better place to live.

This will indeed be a pleasant memory for the many hundreds who gathered for this occasion, and the good wishes extended on that day were most sincere with only a thought of their continuance.

MISS NEWTON WEDS

ciple of football, four out of five of his passes would have been intercepted.

Dero Underwood isn't showing the proper spirit on the field during the game or on the practice field. He has without a doubt more ability than any man on the squad but his strong tendency to cater to laziness will be his downfall.

Heath is still very poor on his passes from center and if he doesn't improve, Coach Wood will be forced to find another center. Heath does a good job of backing up the line though.

Herman Gerick, the big 170 pound lineman, will cause somebody plenty of trouble in the later part of the season but at present his lack of knowledge of the game makes it impossible for him to accomplish much.

With two victories and one tie to the Yoemen's credit, they will fight a hard game tomorrow night to add another victory to their score board and maintain their unscored on record.

GUNSHOT FATAL TO STEVE TOMASEK SAT

Steve Tomasek, 53, was found dead in the yard of his home at Ad Hall Saturday morning. Members of the family found the body with a wound in the chest, nearby was a shotgun from which one shell had been discharged.

Deputy Sheriff Dan Gunn went to the scene of the shooting. He reported that Mr. Tomasek had dug a hole in the ground and placed the stock of the gun several inches below the surface. The barrel was placed against his breast and a stick used to spring the trigger.

Justice Womack Brashear rendered a verdict of suicide after a formal inquest held at the home.

Funeral services were held from the Coleman Funeral home in Cameron at 1 p. m. Sunday afternoon with Rev. O. C. Acrey of the Presbyterian church, conducting the services. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mr. Tomasek was born in Fayette County, but had lived in Milam County for a number of years. He was not married and lived on his farm alone.

CAMERON DAY AT TEMPLE EXPOSITION

First special day arranged for the Central Texas Exposition October 26 to 31 was designated Tuesday for Thursday, October 29—Cameron Day.

On that day the Cameron high school band, bright and snappy in new uniforms, will stage a street parade in Temple at 5 p. m. to give Cameron a big send off.

Then at 7 o'clock from in front of the Baker field grand stand, the Cameron Band will give a special exposition concert.

The Cameron High School Band is recognized as one of the best high school bands in Texas and has attracted considerable favorable comment at football games this year.

The Cameron Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the special Cameron Day at the exposition and W. F. Paden, secretary, has advised that he expects a large delegation from the Milam county capital to come to Temple on that day.

Superintendent E. A. Perrin and the high school authorities are co-operating in making possible the special trip to Temple by the Yoe High bandmen.—From The Temple Telegram.

and the Sheriff will go to Groesbeck for the trial.

Mr. Camp said that restraint of the marble machines was brought about by the request of himself and the sheriff that they be not operated in the county. He also said he sought by counsel to forestall prosecutions but if the injunction at Groesbeck indicated what may be expected under the circumstances, he is prepared to fight it out in the courts.

Yoemen B Squad Loses To Hearne

The Yoemen B Squad again met defeat by a score of 33 to 0 when they met the Hearne B Squad in Hearne Tuesday night.

JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRATS Offer Proof of Anti-New Deal Charges

We recently made charges in this paper that Mr. Roosevelt and his administration were not Democrats, and had no claim to Democratic loyalty. We charged that continuation of his administration would undermine the economy of the nation, and threaten its institutions. We charged that he had opened the sluice-gates of the federal treasury, and, through Boss Farley, had Tammanyized the nation. We charged that he had surrounded himself with radicals, and had more nearly discharged their radical platforms than his own. We are offering the proof of our charges through our paper, the Jeffersonian Democrat.

We reassert that we are regular Democrats. We would prefer to vote the regular ticket. But we refuse to put party loyalty above our loyalty to America. In scratching Roosevelt we violate no party pledge, for the primary ballot contained a pledge to vote for the nominees of that primary. Mr. Roosevelt's name was not on that ballot. Furthermore, the Texas law instructs the voter how to cast a mixed ballot, and the Supreme Court has upheld that right.

We ask all true Democrats to weigh the proof before voting for a continuation of government by irresponsible radicals. Unlike the New Deal we have no ready made organization to spread our propaganda and raise money for our campaign. We will appreciate your support and whatever donations you can make.

Write us for copies of The Jeffersonian Democrat, and help us distribute it throughout your county.

J. EVETTS HALEY, Chairman Jeffersonian Democrats of Texas, Austin, Texas.

30 YEARS FOR RAPE AGAINST H. ALLEN

Harrell Allen of Buckholts on a plea of guilt took a 30 year sentence in Texas prison for rape in connection with an attack upon a Buckholts girl on the night of August 22nd.

According to Criminal District Attorney Camp, the attack occurred on the night of August 22nd near the stock pens in the southwest section of the town of Buckholts. Another couple with Allen and the girl at the time of the attack, testified.

When Allen was arrested, a witness left the county for El Paso. Mr. Camp drove to that city in his auto, had a subpoena served and placed the man under process, to protect the evidence he had obtained leading to Allen's conviction. The witness appeared here for the grand jury and for the trial.

technique

Painstaking care, the finest of equipment, pride in one's work—these things, in a beauty shop, mean nothing, unless augmented by suave technique and the skill that comes from absolute confidence. Combine them, and you have a beauty shop worthy of implicit trust. And more women every day acknowledge, by their patronage, the technical superiority of Lalla Meyer's methods. There is, in this section of the country, no greater beauty shop perfection than that which Lalla Meyer affords. We ask only that you test this claim, to your own satisfaction.

THE MARCH OF TIME

The March of Time, in its new issue, which comes to the Cameron Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday October 13 and 14 again includes three significant stories: The political activities of a new personality, Rev. Gerald Smith; the war against disease spreading bacteria waged by the milk industry, and the Passamaquoddy Tidal Power Project in Maine.

No figure of the present campaign is as colorful as Smith, the self-appointed political and spiritual heir of Huey P. Long. March of Time shows his phenomenal rise in the past year from a Share-Our-Wealth organizer to a Messiah of the rabid political minorities.

Rapid Political Success

Discredited and denounced in Louisiana, he arrived on the national scene, made the nation's front pages when he sold Dr. Francis Townsend on walking out of a Congressional committee investigation Old Age Pension revenues. In June he stormed the Cleveland convention of Townsendsites and in August Father Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice. Today, as he swings across the nation predicting chaos and impressing his vaunted leadership on millions of uncertain Americans, March of Time points out that thoughtful observers wonder whether Gerald Smith is a man of destiny, or only a political wind-bag temporarily disturbing the nation's peace.

Better Milk

In the episode on Milk, March of Time shows the great strides which have been made in the last forty years in the purification of this, the most healthful of human foods, but also the most perishable and potentially dangerous. Today, while in most European countries adults shun milk, the U. S. War against impure milk goes quietly on—a war to insure the purity this year of 17 billion quarts of milk.

Story of Quoddy

Few projects of recent years have been as much discussed as the Passamaquoddy Tidal Power Project, and few have been as little understood. To give the full story of Quoddy, March of Time goes back more than a decade to the day when Dexter Cooper, long-time summer neighbor of Franklin Roosevelt at Eastport on Passamaquoddy Bay, first announced his plan to harness the tide that sweeps into Passamaquoddy and

CAMERON ICERS BEAT SURGEONS; WIN TITLE

Four sloppy innings of baseball cost the Temple Surgeons the championship of the Heart O' Texas league Sunday afternoon as they went down before the Cameron Icers 6 to 3.

Picking up their six runs in the first four innings, the Icers were never headed. In the first, Hubert Shelly's long sacrifice fly scored Rigsby, Joe Kosel scored in the second, after doubling, on Allen's slow roller down first base line.

Triple Cleans Bags

Three Icer runs crossed in the third, Munro hit. Shelly got a life as Zoch was too slow fielding a hopper. Peel singled, filling the bases, and Kosel tripped against the wall. The final Icer counter came in the fourth as Williams hit, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored as Morgan erred on Munro's roller.

The six runs came in on six hits off Zoch. After the fourth, both Zoch and the Surgeon infield settled down and played baseball. Only 17 men faced Zoch in the last five frames.

Shelley Pitches for Icers

The Surgeons scored in the fourth, fifth and seventh, one run at a time. In the fourth, Lind hit, advanced on Jansing's Texas leaguer, and scored on Buckley's double. One more came in the fifth as Morgan got a Texas leaguer, stole second, and came all the way home as Rigsby erred. Lind's grounder to third. Carl Craft scored in the seventh as he hit, went down on a passed ball, and raced in on Morgan's hit through first.

Jackie Reid failed to appear to pitch, and Hubert Shelley took over the hit for the Icers. He had nothing more than a fairly fast one, giving up 10 hits to Zoch's eight, but managed to keep them scattered.

Kosel Hitting Star

Zoch's stuff didn't come to him until the fifth, after it was too late. Joe Kosel from Springfield in the Western Association, was the day's star. Three ringing hits and a perfect day afield made him look like a good bet for his owners, the Saint Louis Cardinals. Morgan, Lind and Buckley hit twice each for the Surgeons.

Three base hit: Kosel. Two base hits: Kosel, Buckley. Double plays, Williams to Kosel to Munro 2. Runs batted in, Shelly, Allen, Wright, Kosel 2, Buckley, Lind, Morgan. Hit by pitcher: Shelley by Zoch, Buckley by Shelley. Struck out: by Zoch, 2, Shelley 2. Base on balls: off Zoch 3, off Shelley 1. Stolen bases: Buckley, Williams, Morgan.

At The THEATER In Cameron

By C. W. GJEDDE
"SWING TIME"

For the first time since their screen careers joined, Fred Astaire has a romantic rival for the affections of Ginger Rogers in the new RKO Radio musical, "Swing Time," coming to the Cameron Theatre Sunday and Monday October 11 and 12. Georges Metaxa, dark and handsome star of the London and New York musical comedy stages, is the romantic menace.

Through five previous films, the loves of Astaire and Miss Rogers have been made turbulent by a variety of complications which did not include a serious rival, either male or female. In "Top Hat," to be sure Eric Rhodes portrayed the "other man" but his interference was comic, rather than romantic. The real obstacle to matrimony was mistaken identity. "Flying Down to Rio," "The Gay Divorcee" and "Roberta" were equally free from rivals. Even in "Follow the Fleet," Astaire was successful in keeping any of his fellow sailors from cutting in on his romance.

Metaxa, however, looms as a real threat in the current production. Playing the role of a dashing orchestra leader, he is a gallant who cannot be dismissed lightly.

Miss Rogers, incidentally, also has her troubles. The picture starts with Astaire very much interested in another woman, and he builds up a series of highly comic situations in his efforts to jilt this charmer played by Betty Furness, without offending her.

"KELLY THE SECOND"

"Kelly the Second," new Hal Roach feature length comedy is coming to the Cameron Theatre Thursday October 8. It has the punch of Joe Louis; the color of Dempsey; and the finesse of a Tunny.

Featuring such popular screen personalities as Patsy Kelly, Charley Chase, Pert Kelton, Edward Brophy, and others, the story has to do with the adventures of Patsy Kelly, who is the sweetheart-trainer of Cecil Callahan, a truck driver who becomes a professional fighter.

A fast-moving story with action galore, "Kelly the Second" is not

If It Is Hot Where You Are, Look at This

This picture, taken during the unprecedented hot spell that afflicted most of the country, shows a view along the Trail Ridge road in Colorado's Rocky Mountain national park. It comes from the Union Pacific railroad.

what one might term a prize fight picture although the story hinges on the ring career of one of its principals. There is a pretty romance between Miss Kelly and Guinn Williams, while Miss Kelton as the "girl friend" of Edward Brophy in the role of a racketeer, supplies menace as well as mirth.

Without question or doubt, the picture is Patsy Kelly's. She dominates every scene in which she appears with her inimitable flair for comedy. Produced by Hal Roach M-G-M, "Kelly the Second" ranks high among the feature comedy releases of the current year.

"THE GENERAL DIED AT DAWN"

A gripping drama of intrigue, romance and adventure, "The General Died at Dawn," which comes to the Cameron Theatre Friday and Saturday October 9 and 10, brings Gary Cooper to the screen in another colorful soldier-of-fortune role.

With modern China as its background, the plot revolves around the awakening of China to the oppressions of her predatory war-lords and the beginnings of spirit resistance. Cooper, as the champion of the down-trodden, is in the ranks of the new movement. Playing opposite him is beautiful Madeleine Carroll in the role of the lure held out by a war-lord to lead Cooper to destruction.

"The General Died at Dawn" is the thrilling story of love that blooms between a man who's life is in danger and the girl who was paid to get him out of the way. Having trapped him she soon finds herself enmeshed in the same web. Remorse causes her to offer her life for the freedom of the man she loves. In a thrilling climax the pair snatch happiness and love from the very jaws of death and save the cause to which the man had dedicated his life.

"AVENGING WATERS"

Packed with explosive thrills is Columbia's brilliant drama of the open spaces, "Avenge Waters" which comes to the Milam Theatre Friday and Saturday October 9 and 10, with Ken Maynard and lovely Beth Marion in the starring roles.

"Avenge Waters" is undoubtedly one of the most exciting, and thrill-packed screen plays of the current season with the handsome and daring Maynard, truly called king of the cowboys, giving one of his finest performances as a dare-devil, two-fisted cowboy who braves even death itself to aid the girl he loves.

The exciting storm sequences in which an entire town was almost inundated, are some of the most thrilling ever shown on the screen.

"LOVE BEGINS AT 30"

Warren Hull and Patricia Ellis come to the Cameron Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday in a beautiful romantic drama "Love Begins at 20."

RESETTLEMENT FARM LOANS RESTRICTED

Rehabilitation loans for the new crop year are now being authorized by the Resettlement Administration, but lack of funds requires the number and amount to be more restricted than during the past year, it was announced today by Glenn Mitchell, county supervisor.

"New borrowers in drought or flood areas will receive what we term emergency loans, for purchase of seed, feed and supplies for human subsistence," the supervisor said. "We are not authorized to make any new 'standard' rehabilitation loans which are for purchase of teams and equipment, as well as supplies. We made such standard loans last winter to 134 farmers of this county, a large number of whom were thereby enabled to buy teams and equipment and continue farming operations, or to resume operations. Where these previous borrowers now require supplementary loans, we are authorized to make them for the purchase of necessary supplies."

RUSSELL BROTHERS CIRCUS OCTOBER 17

Circus fans and lovers of clean amusement should make note that the big Russell Bros. Circus and menagerie will exhibit in Cameron on Saturday, October 17. According to all advance reports, this will be the biggest and best circus to show in Cameron in recent years.

There is an unexplainable something about the circus which attracts every person, regardless of color, sex, creed or politics. Even those associated with the business itself admit a lure which holds them in the business just as the public is drawn to it for entertainment.

The fact that the circus is a transient city, here today, elsewhere tomorrow, controlled by perfect organization, and daily surmounting obstacles which to others seem impossible, these physical facts cause its presence in any community to be fascinating entirely regardless of the performance. The circus seems a sort of fairy land to old and young. All sorts of conditions and people share its mysteries and delight in visiting it.

The Appalling Tragedy of Legion Valley

By JOHN WARREN HUNTER
From "The Bloody Trail of Texas."

No part of Texas suffered more from Indian outrages than the Edwards Plateau country of Southwest Texas—particularly that section between the Llano and San Saba rivers, in and around what is now Llano county. From the date of its earliest settlement—in the 50's and up to the 70's—Llano county was subjected to repeated Indian attacks and depredations.

February 6th and 7th, 1868, were dark days for the little community of Legion Valley, in Llano county. But few persons lived in the fertile valley, and among them were the families of Boyd Johnson, Frank Johnson, John S. Friend, Jack Bradford and Mrs. Caudle. On the 4th of February rain fell, followed by cold weather and a heavy snowfall. No Indians had been seen around Legion Valley for some time and none was expected during mid-winter months. Indians usually picked fair weather for invading the white settlements.

This lack of vigilance on the part of Legion Valley settlers during winter-time was the main cause of an Indian attack, February 6th, 1868, that for ferocity and brutality has no parallel in Texas Indian warfare.

Mrs. Boyd Johnson and her child, Mrs. Frank Johnson and her child, a Miss Townsend and the 11-year-old daughter of Mrs. Caudle were visiting in the home of Mrs. Friend the day of the Legion Valley tragedy. The husbands of these families, not apprehending danger from any source, had left their homes together early in the morning, not to return until nightfall.

22 Indians Attack Women and Children

About 3 o'clock in the afternoon, while the children of the three families were snow-balling in the yard of Mrs. Friend, a band of 22 Indians approached horseback. When within 100 yards of the house, they turned aside as if to pass on without halting. The appearance of the Indians so frightened the children in the yard that they began to scream as they fled toward the house. The two Mrs. Johnsons, alarmed by the cries of the children, ran outside to help the smaller children into the house more quickly.

All the women, excepting Mrs. Friend, were as panic-stricken as the children, adding their screams to the screams of the children.

During this commotion, the Indians had come closer to the house, close enough to observe that no men folks were there to protect the women. Mrs.

Friend, after closing and bolting the doors, rushed to the rear of the cabin to close and fasten an open window. By now several Indians were trying to force open the front door, while other Indians were prying open the rear window. Finally the Indians battered down the front door and rushed inside. Mrs. Friend aimed a rifle at the foremost Indian, but before she could fire a shot, an arrow pierced her arm and the rifle was wrenched from her hands.

A Lone Battle

Meanwhile the savages had effected entrance through the rear window. Turning, Mrs. Friend faced these savages from the rear with a flat iron, knocking down one of them with this weapon. The savage who had wrenched the rifle from her hands pointed it at her, but before he could pull trigger she felled him with a chair. Poor Mrs. Friend was fighting a lone battle. The other three white women, badly frightened, made no attempt to resist the Indians.

Mrs. Friend continued to battle the red fiends until an arrow struck her in the breast, whereupon she fell unconscious to the floor. She was then scalped and left for dead.

The Indians, meeting no further resistance, began pillaging. They ransacked the house and took from it whatever suited their fancy, destroying furniture or anything else that could not be tied conveniently to the backs of in order to mislead the Indians into believing she really were dead. However, one Indian, somewhat suspicious, returned to the house, seized the arrow still sticking in her breast and wrenched it back and forth, as a test to determine whether she still were alive. This brave pioneer woman endured the additional torture thus afflicted without flinching or uttering a sound. Believing her dead, the inhuman wretch, without further investigation, left to rejoin his companions as they all proceeded to leave in a northwesterly direction.

Not expecting help soon, Mrs. Friend, still weak from shock and loss of blood, decided to leave her home and seek assistance in the home of her nearest neighbor, Mr. Jack Bradford, who lived a mile and a half distant.

Slowly and painfully she trudged her way through the snow to the home of Mr. Bradford, falling exhausted at the door, a forlorn and tragic figure. She begged Mr. Bradford to pull the arrow from her breast, but the barbed point of the arrow made this impossible. He did all he could to make Mrs. Friend comfortable until a physician arrived hours later, extracted the arrow and bandaged her wounds.

It was twenty-four hours after the attack on the Friend home before word of the tragedy reached Llano.

Armed men took up the trail of the Indians and followed it some distance, but it faded out and the Indians escaped.

The pursuing party, however, found their horses.

When ready to leave, they made captives the three remaining women and children—six in all—which included Mrs. Boyd Johnson and child, Mrs. Frank Johnson and child, Miss Townsend and the little daughter of Mrs. Caudle.

Feigns Death

Although desperately wounded, Mrs. Friend regained consciousness in time to see the Indians depart with their plunder and captives. She lay on the floor motionless, feigning death,

Breaking Crime's Vicious Circle

By W. W. HALCOMB

Supervising Director of Volunteer Parole Boards.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Home Color Print Co.)

YOU have probably heard of Governor James V. Allred's method of releasing, on parole, deserving men from the penitentiary. Unlike some predecessors in office, the Governor did not think it best just to turn them loose. Even if a convict deserved clemency, it is not best, either for his sake or for society, to release him without supervision. From this basic thought, the Governor conceived the idea of local county boards, composed of good citizens in each community, who will look after the youthful offenders while under parole.

A young man—one of a group finishing his term on parole—was in my office the other day. He looked me squarely in the eye and, for half an hour, told me about himself. He had been out of prison for three months after serving more than a year of a two-year sentence. In all sincerity, he praised the Governor and the Parole Board, under whom he was being supervised. "It's tough enough in times like these," he said, "for a man who has never been convicted of crime to get a job. But when you write 'ex-convict' on a fellow, he's just about sunk. The County Parole Board has treated me like a respectable citizen, has been patient with me, has worked with me and I thank God that there are still men and women within whose veins flows the milk of human kindness."

Made Good on Parole

Of course, I was interested in this young man's story. He was fairly well educated and had a determined look. I examined his record; it showed no previous convictions. He had entered a plea of guilty and was given a two-year sentence. His prison record was unblemished; the Governor had granted him a parole upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles. Now, bear this in mind—it costs the State of Texas about $300.00 a year to keep a man in the penitentiary. As is usual, the State or county in turn is called upon to support his dependents. Since on parole this man had taken care of a wife who was in need of medical attention. With the assistance of his daughter, who had been living gratuitously with relatives, he sat himself up in business and is making a tremendous success of it. Last month his income was over $300.00. In another five years he should be a leader in his community. If not, Governor Allred and this writer will be sadly disappointed.

This might be called an exceptional case? Perhaps so. But there are hundreds of others like it that would tug at your heartstrings.

Don't misunderstand me. There is no maudlin sentiment about this movement. Adequate supervision while on parole is as much a part of the treatment of a person convicted of crime as his incarceration within prison walls while at Huntsville. It is true that there are hundreds of men who should NEVER be released from the penitentiary. It is also true that a lot of prisoners serving a two or three-year sentence should serve a LIFETIME. By the same token, there are lifers who deserve another break.

Breaking the Vicious Circle

The parole, so Governor Allred believes, is a mighty good method of breaking the vicious circle of crime.

Society's obligation does not end when it arrests, tries and convicts a violator of the law. Society's obligation BEGINS at that point.

If every convicted man served every day of his sentence and there were no such thing as parole—if this were true—NINETY PER CENT would either come back to their own or to some other community! This, by virtue of the fact that the average sentence is less than ten years.

What of this man about to be released from prison? Let us assume that his intentions are honest. But should it become known he is an ex-convict he is not wanted. If he tells a prospective employer that he has been in the pen, as a rule, he doesn't get the job. Thus it goes. Discouraged, baffled, what is there left for him to do? Depend on it, there is one group to whom he can always turn—his criminal pals. They will aid and advise him. Back with these evil companions, it is not long before he is again bound for the State prison. This is the vicious circle.

And it is a circle that we aim to break down with County Parole Boards.

Have you ever visited the Texas penitentiary? If not, it would be well worth your while to do so. Try to be there when the men line up at meal time. The thing that will doubtless impress you most is the fact that a majority of the inmates are little more than mere boys. Upon investigation you will be astounded to know that over 85 per cent of the inmates of all our prison-institutions are UNDER THE AGE OF TWENTY-FOUR!

Crime in the Early Stages

Of course, everyone should know that the proper time to attack crime is in the early stages. Let me call your attention to the fact that THERE ARE NO BOY SCOUTS IN THE PENITENTIARY!

And boys who attend Sunday School regularly seldom have penitentiary careers.

These facts should impel us to cut off this hydra-headed monster, known as crime, at its very root, and do it at the PROPER TIME!

You may say that the parole problem is handling the dog by the tail, and you're right. But we must handle it, nevertheless. The problem presses sorely for solution.

Let me repeat—the administration is definitely opposed to indiscriminate release of hardened criminals, nor will they be turned loose to prey again upon society. The penitentiary is the place to house hardened CRIMINALS!

But the first offender—the youth with no previous criminal record—the youth who has made a mistake can be restored, in many instances, to citizenship.

180 County Parole Boards

To that end there have been organized in Texas some 180 volunteer County Parole Boards. They serve without salary, even buying their own official stamps, pay their own expenses where expense is necessary and seek only to serve a worthy cause. They were selected without thought of political preference, were selected from the best people in Texas. They are high-minded, public-spirited citizens who seek no reward other than to render a meritorious service.

The entire set-up thus far has not cost the State one dime.

Occasionally it becomes necessary for the Board to recommend revocation of a parole, or furlough, and when this is done the individual is hurried back to prison, that society may not suffer from misplaced confidence.

Restoring these people—these ex-convicts—is just good sound business. If they can be made self-supporting the State is not only saved the expense of keeping them, but has added to its ecoomic wealth. Destitute families are thus taken off the relief rolls. Misery, dejection and dependency are relieved. Although in a larger sense we are accomplishing a greater objective, yet we are assisting an erring brother; salvaging human beings. If this is not practical Christianity, then I am unacquainted with the meaning of the word.

Diamonds

EARLY everyone has seen a diamond, yet a prominent jeweler recently declared that all the diamonds in the world would not fill two ordinary oil drums.

Other jewelers are not so sure, however. It is not generally known how many uncut stones are being held off the market by the great Diamond Syndicate in order to maintain the high price. Some even claim that if all the diamonds held in reserve by this trust were suddenly offered for sale, diamonds would become comparatively worthless.

The earliest known diamonds were worn uncut in India 5,000 years ago. India was also the source of supply until diamonds were discovered in Brazil about 1700. Then Brazil became the largest producer and remained so until diamonds were discovered in South Africa in the year of 1869.

The South African diamond mines lie about 647 miles northeast of Cape Town on the great dry tableland of the Karoo.

Pioneer Boers trekked into this desolate country and settled on the Orange and Vaal rivers. A trader who called on one of the Boers saw the farmer's little daughter playing with a remarkably brilliant pebble. He suspected it was a diamond, offered it to a jeweler and got $2,500, half of which he gave to the Boer.

Two years later he bought a fine diamond from a witch doctor for $2,000 and sold it for $56,000. A fine gem of 83 carats, it started a rush to the banks of the Vaal river which rivaled the later rush to the Klondike for gold.

But the real strike came three years later on the Dutoit farm, 22 miles from the Vaal river, where some boys and girls found diamonds near a shallow pool of water.

The miners rushed to this new find and started digging. They soon found that the surface deposit was only a sample. Going deeper, they discovered the diamond-bearing "blue ground" which made Kimberley what it is today.

This blue ground is in "pipes." A pipe is an immense funnel, the crater of an extinct mud volcano. How far the volcano pipes go down is not known. A few steps from Kimberley's main street is the deepest man-made hole in the world, the Kimberley Mine. Open working was carried on here to a depth of 1,200 feet, when it was stopped because further evidence of savage cruelty. A few miles from the Friend home they came upon the lifeless body of Mrs. Boyd Johnson's child, its brains beaten out. A little further on they found the body of Mrs. Frank Johnson's child, its throat cut. But a more ghastly find, far back in the hills, shocked every member of the pursuing party. It was the scalped and mutilated bodies of the two Mrs. Johnsons. Late in the afternoon of the same day, Miss Townsend's body was found beside the trail, also scalped and mutilated.

Little Caudle Girl's Experience

The little Caudle girl, held captive among the Indians three years, was released through governmental agents and restored to her mother. In later years she married a Mr. Beason. I knew her well when she lived at Llano and am indebted to her for many of the facts related in this story. Mrs. Beason told me her experience, beginning with the day of her capture, and it is here reproduced in her own words:

"It was late in the afternoon when the Indians started with us from Mrs. Friend's. The weather was cloudy and cold. There were two or three squaws with the Indians; one of them took me up behind on her horse and was very kind to me. She drew a blanket around me and I didn't suffer much from the cold. The first night we camped on the northwest side of a small mountain, not a great way from the Friend home. We found shelter from the cold wind in a cedar brake, where the Indians kept up good fires all night. My squaw slept with me, tucking buffalo robes about me so I would sleep warm. As long as I stayed with the Indians she was my adopted mother, treating me as her own child.

Mrs. Friend fully recovered from her wounds, which was remarkable, for very few white persons recover after having been scalped by Indians. I know of but two—Mrs. Friend and Josiah Wilbarger, who was scalped by Indians and left for dead while working with a surveying party near Austin, Texas, in 1833. The last I heard of Mrs. Friend she was in good health and living at Springfield, Mo.

of continued caving in of the sides. At the top the hole is 1,200 feet across.

Mining has since been done by underground workings extending to a depth of 3,600 feet and the bottom of the pipe has not yet been reached. Kimberley, incidentally, is about a mile from the original find on Dutoit farm. The whole area is a virtual maze of underground volcanic pipes which contain diamonds.

Negroes dig the blue ground from the mines. Hoisted to the surface, it is first pulverized either by machinery or is left in the sun for two years. Then it is put through a series of beaters and screens and is washed and reworked. Watchers "spot" the diamonds of unusual size. The rest pass on to tables covered with vaseline, where the diamonds cling to the grease while the accompanying debris is rejected.

Natives who work in the mines must be thoroughly searched when they leave. Otherwise they would swallow the diamonds and get away with them. One worker even tried to smuggle out some diamonds in a hole he had cut in his leg.

Before cutting a diamond the rough crystal is studied until the grain is found. Then a nick is ground along the grain with another diamond. A blunt steel chisel is then placed in this nick and a smart blow of a hammer divides the crystals evenly and perfectly. After this the diamond is set in a turning wheel and ground with diamond dust until it takes the shape in which we know it.

The largest diamond ever found was the Cullinan, in 1905, in South Africa. Weighing about 134 pounds, it was bought by the Transvaal government and presented to King Edward in 1907. The jeweler who cut it studied the great stone for a year before he could get up nerve enough to make a cleavage.

A New Moon?

A new terror now rides the heavens. It is Anteros, the "smallest-ever" planet, which missed the earth a few weeks ago by only 1,000,000 miles!

If this great chunk of rock had a regular orbit around the sun astronomers would not be so jumpy. But Anteros swings hither and thither under the pull of other planets. At present it is rushing away from us, but no one knows when it will return, perhaps to crash headlong into the earth.

Astronomers say Anteros is not large enough to destroy the earth, but if it ever bumps into us it will shake the world to its very foundations and create tidal waves of unprecedented height.

There is the more reassuring possibility that it may get caught in the earth's spin and become another moon. Mars seems to have added one or two moons in that way, according to American astronomers.

Animals in Court

RECENTLY a dog was brought into court and solemnly tried for biting a person. Not so many years ago a county in North Carolina had a special law, written by an illiterate legislator, which provided fines for certain animals running at large. The law of Moses directed that an ox that gores a man or woman should be stoned to death. Other ancient peoples tried animals for various offenses. Animals were supposed to have moral natures and moral responsibilities as human beings have.

The National Geographic Society has out a bulletin on the history of court trials for animals guilty of killing or maiming or of other offenses. In the fifteenth century there were prosecutions by the score against moles, rats, ants, insects, eels and other animals. Historical records show that practically every European country haled animals into court, but trials were most frequent in France, Germany and Switzerland.

Murder was the usual charge. Pigs, which then mingled with the peasants in and around their homes, were common offenders. They along with other domestic animals were tried in the civil courts. Wild animals, snakes, snails, caterpillars, grasshoppers, and many other animals were turned over to the courts of the church for trial and punishment. As these animals were dumb, a glib advocate was provided for them; they even had the right of appeal. The prosecutor read loudly before their haunts and holes the charges against them. They were usually punished by anathemas and decrees of banishment.

In Canada a suit was once brought against turtle doves. In Brazil, two centuries ago, certain ants were convicted of undermining cellars and stealing flour. In 1474, an old rooster in Switzerland was tried and convicted of laying an egg. He was burned at the stake. Animals of all kinds have been condemned to torture on the rack, the pillory, exile in Siberia, and hanging.

In New England brutes had the right of trial. There were several executions, two of them of dogs found guilty at Salem of witchcraft.

Taxation of Tangible and Intangible Property

People living in the country and in the smaller towns and cities have for many years believed that they were paying an undue proportion of the taxes. This opinion is wide-spread all over the nation. That such a belief is well founded so far as Texas is concerned is demonstrated by Bulletin No. 5055 of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at College Station. Mr. L. P. Gabbard made the study, which involves a complete compilation and classification of property values of 25,187 estates probated in 47 selected counties during the period 1922-1931. An analysis of the probate records shows:

"1. Tangible property constituted 54.1 per cent, and intangible property 45.9 per cent of all property probated. "2. Tangible property constituted 97.1 per cent of the property assessed for taxation for State and county purposes . . . and intangible property 2.8 per cent.

"3. Intangible property constituted 31.6 per cent of the property probated in rural communities, 38.4 per cent in town communities, and 50 per cent in city communities."

Mr. Gabbard arrives at the conclusion that there are gross inequalities in the taxation of tangible as compared with intangible property; that because of the concentration of intangible property in towns and cities, rural communities bear a disproportionate share of the cost of government; that almost all intangible property, such as stocks, bonds, mortgages, notes, cash in hand, cash on deposit, etc., escapes the payment of a direct tax.

Herb Doctors

At a recent meeting of a medical association, an address was made, calling attention to the value of medicines of vegetable origin in fighting many of our common diseases, among them high blood pressure.

In olden times each vegetable was supposed to possess a curative virtue, and was called a "simple." Both civilized and savage peoples used vegetable remedies as specifics or palliatives for diseases. In the early days of America there were regular "herb doctors" who used only "simples" in the treatment of all diseases of man and dumb brute. The city physicians of that time, graduates of the great medical school of Edinburgh and Paris, used drugs largely of mineral origin. When you read their prescriptions, you wonder, not that they effected cures, but rather that any one took the stuff prescribed and lived to tell the tale.

Of course, physicians have never ceased to use drugs of vegetable origin. Until a few years ago one of the few specifics known for a disease was quinine, manufactured until recently from the bark of the cinchona tree, a native of tropical America. It was used for the cure of malaria. The active principle of morphine and strychnine is found in plants.

One would judge that from the way our physicians are now talking that our forefathers, or rather foremothers, for it was the mothers who administered bitter herbal draughts to the children, were not so far wrong after all. In the old gardens of the East you may still find many herbs, brought from England, supposed to have curative properties. Among them are comfrey, mother wort, horehound, burdock, camomile, senna, and many others. Some early Texas mother, wishing to have a cure for colds, brought horehound with her when she immigrated to this State. It has escaped to the prairies and now grows in places in such profusion that many think it indigenous.

But these ancestors of ours were not content to confine their list of remedies to plants brought from Europe. They adopted the use of many native plants from the Indians. Sassafras tea, a rather pleasant drink, was supposed to be good for "thinning the blood" in spring. Not so pleasant was boneset tea, used not only in fevers but also as a tonic, especially good for children who looked a little pale. A kettle of it was kept in the spring of the year for the daily use of children. Snake root, wild cherry bark, and other bitter "simples" were much used, doubtless good, in the opinion of our forefathers, because they were unpleasant to take. Red pepper tea was a common remedy for colds. They also used lobelia and the juice of jimson weeds for the cure of the rash caused by poison oak—and there are no more efficacious remedies. Turpentine and castor oil were administered to many an unwilling child. Children had also to take some mineral drugs, if they were unpleasant or would nauseate. Among them were calomel, "blue mass," and Epsom salts. In those days there were no sugar-coated pills.

With the doctors turning their attention to the vegetable world in their search for medicines, it looks as though the old herbalists of the Middle Ages and our great grandmothers are coming into their own. Maybe they had more wisdom than we moderns will allow them.

Astrologers

Astrologers, who claim the ability to tell the influence of the stars upon your destiny and to foretell future events by their position and aspects, are making predictions again—some good, some bad.

Like the poor, astrologers have been with us always and have always found many, even among well-informed people, who believe in them. But all along through the ages they have found hard-headed people who sneer at their pretensions.

The All-American Astrologers Convention met recently in Chicago. Before adjourning they gave out many predictions. Some of the predictions, which you may have made yourself without the aid of the stars, are listed below. Check them to see how many of them come true:

"The economic outlook for next year is good; there will be a boom in real estate; there will be no drought.

No general European war will start for at least a year. In the far East

Japan will swallow no more of China until 1940.

Inflation threatens the United States in 1941.

Mr. Roosevelt will be re-elected."

Driverless Car

New Yorkers like a thrill, and they had an unusual one the other day. They saw a driverless cabriolet winding in and out of their traffic cluttered streets. It remained under perfect control during this and other exhibitions which followed. It turned to right and left as required, made U-turns, and obeyed all traffic regulations. Pedestrians stopped to gaze and to wonder. Finally the police took the sponsors of the driverless car to the station, but could find no violation of traffic ordinances, and, though unconvinced, had to turn the sponsors loose.

The cabriolet followed a lead car and was controlled from this car by radio devices, the mechanism of which was concealed in the top.

This was the first time that a driverless car had cruised through the streets of New York, but it was nothing new scientifically. For some years our Navy Department and, probably the navies of all the great countries of the world, have been experimenting with radio control of torpedoes. If such control ever becomes effective for long distances—and it may—great battleships, with their present means of warding off such attacks, will be obsolete. It has also been tried, with some success, in the control of airplanes.

Statistics

After studying some statistics given out by those who presume to speak with authority, we are alarmed about the state of our nation and are wondering where the people shall get money to pay for food, shelter and clothing. We just cannot figure it out. But here are some figures proclaimed lately by experts:

Cost of disease.....	10 billion
Cost of crime.....	20 billion
Cost of cars and gasoline.....	15 billion
Cost of cigarettes.....	6 billion
Cost of cosmetics.....	6 billion
Taxes, local, State, national, 10 billion to 30 billion, (varying with your attitude toward the government).

This totals 57 to 77 billion dollars a year, drink bill not included. Our national government claims that last year our income was nearly 54 billion. So we have had less than nothing with which to buy food and clothes. There is a haunting fear that we may have statistical tremors, or statistical cramps.

What the Spanish Rebels are Fighting For

The following outline of the plan of the provisional government (rebels) of Spain shows why those supporting the revolt have rebelled against the regularly constituted government:

1. A military dictatorship supporting a fascist State and co-operating with "friendly nations," Germany and Italy; suppressions of "lockouts" by employers and of strikes—State control of labor; restitution of property seized from the church and nobles; a political council to advise the dictator.

2. Later, a plebiscite to determine if the Spanish people want the king back.

3. Immediate trial of government leaders who opposed the White restoration; suppression of Asturias and Catalonia—provinces that "failed to co-operate as political entities."

Asturias is in the northern part of Spain, containing Irún, recently captured by the rebels; Barcelona is in the extreme northeastern part, containing the great city of Barcelona. In politics it has always been exceedingly liberal.

The present government is fighting for its life. What we may expect, if it suppresses the rebellion, may be learned from a proclamation recently given out by the government leader Indalecio Prieto, a Socialist: "Spain is not ready or well enough developed for pure communism. We shall nationalize the banks, industries, mines, railroads, and other transports, but we need the wealth provided by the small trader."

The Small College

At the annual homecoming of Wesley College at Greenville, in August, Senator Connally paid tribute to the small college, saying that "with the passing of the smaller colleges much is being taken out of the educational life of our people." He urged that everything possible be done to preserve the small Christian college. He called attention to the fact that many men distinguished in the arts and eminent in our political history have been the products of the small college.

We agree with the Senator. Larger colleges have furnished most of the Presidents during the last thirty years, but during the nineteenth century most of our great statesmen received their education in the small college.

The advantages are not altogether on the side of the larger institutions. The student is usually nearer home in the small college and there are not so many costly distractions—costly both in time and money. In the small college, where the number of pupils in classes is not great, the individual pupil receives more attention, and his relation to the teacher is more intimate—a thing of much value, as fine moral and religious character is always a necessary qualification of the professors. It means much for the student to have such a man by which to pattern his own life during these final years of his formal education and some one close enough to him to advise him about the religious doubts which beset young people at this age. We are not saying that the trustees of the great universities neglect the consideration of these qualities when they come to make selection of professors. We know many of these professors who are fine Christian men. We do say that the association between student and teacher cannot be so intimate in the larger institution.

The changes in the curriculum have had much to do with the decline of the small college. In an age when Greek, Latin, and mathematics were required of all students, and when there were meager laboratory facilities for the sciences, even in the largest and wealthiest colleges, the large college had few advantages over the small one. With the importance now attached to laboratories and equipment, the large institutions now have better buildings and laboratories, and, with their enormous endowments and appropriations, can pay better salaries and attract the best teachers.

Young people, selecting a college, are frequently influenced by the prowess in athletics, or the lack of it, of the institution they are thinking of entering. Those with whom this influence is potent will select the large institution. It is simply impossible for the small institution to get the better football players turned out by the high schools and to finance winning athletic teams.

Senator Connally believes that there is a fine field and great opportunity still open for the small college. In our judgment this can be true only upon two conditions: First, the small colleges must have better endowments so that they can pay salaries attractive to the best professors and charge small tuition fees. Second, they must limit the number of courses offered and give as good instruction in these courses as can be found elsewhere.

Deaths By Automobile

The number of deaths by automobile was fewer by about 3,000 for the first six months of 1936 than for the first six months of 1935. People began to take hope that those using the highways were becoming more careful—a hope that the record for July and August shows to have been illusory. It now seems that the fearful toll of more than 36,000 lives in 1935 will be exceeded in 1936. A highwater mark of tragedy for one day was set on Sunday, August 30, when 112 people in America met their deaths in automobile accidents.

Warnings of street traffic officials and highway officials seem to have little effect on many drivers. Along our highways are such signs as: "CURVE—SLOW DOWN," "DO NOT PASS CAR ON HILL," "DO NOT PASS CAR ON CURVE." Yet, recently, while driving west of Fort Worth, on Bankhead highway, I saw motorists deliberately pass cars on hills and on curves.

Business and Employment

The University of Texas has a Bureau of Business Research, which gets reports of employment and pay of workers from the entire State. These reports showed that for the week ending August 15th there was an increase in the number of workers of 6.2 per cent over the corresponding week of last year, and an increase of 1.4 per cent over the corresponding week of July. Total payrolls for the two comparative periods showed an increase of 12.1 per cent and .2 per cent, respectively.

Increases greater than the State average were shown in Abilene, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Denison, Galveston, Lubbock, Sherman and Waco.

Industries which show a greater percentage than the average in gains over last year are building materials, clothing, textiles, wholesale trade, petroleum refining, printing, public utilities and hotels.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce in a recent statement called attention to increases in car loadings, electric output, industrial production, employment and construction during July and August. The National Association of Credit Men announced that the nation's wholesale merchants and manufacturers made substantial gains in July. Wholesalers reported a gain of 21 per cent over a year ago and manufacturers a gain of 33 per cent for the same period. Improvement in these lines is confirmed by researches of the Federal Reserve Board and the figures given out by the government. The government also tells us that, notwithstanding the disastrous drought, the income of the farmers is greater than it has been in years.

A Scientific Thesis on Drouths

By JOE SAPPINGTON

622 Sedwick Ave., Waco, Texas.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Home Color Print Co.)

THE drouth in Texas and Oklahoma may be over by the time this is printed and read, but if not, or another drouth hits us in 1937, I have a plan that will bring soaking rains to the Southwest. The plan is simple and the reason I have not sprung it before is because I did not want to interfere with the drouth plans of the New Deal. But now, since the New Deal failed to produce enough rain to save our cotton and corn crops, I feel it my patriotic duty to come to the aid of my country.

Here's my simple plan to make it rain: Kill snakes and hang 'em up on fences and bushes like we boys did at Cave Creek back in the eighties. Of course, there will be skeptics who, after reading this article, will deliberately ignore the plain facts herewith submitted—facts of an eyewitness—a man who took a leading part in killing the snakes and placing them at advantageous points. For all I know, some of this cynical crowd may denounce me as a crank and a fakir.

One of the worst overflows in Cave Creek took place in less time than twelve hours after John Judson, Pud Jackson and myself killed all those snakes on our way to the old swimming hole and strung them up on bushes. It was this rain that swept Hoge Dug-gins' wash-pot out into Frank Beavers' cow pen, breaking two legs of the pot, besides drowning six half-grown hound pups that belonged to old Tom Spencer.

Hang Up Too Many Snakes

Knowing we were the cause of the flood and the damage it had wrought, we kept quiet for about two weeks. That taught us a lesson about hanging up too many snakes at one time. After that we killed only enough snakes to make it rain just right—so that the fields would be too soft for chopping cotton and fishing would be good.

That snakes influence weather was proven the time two of our young rain-makers came out to where I was working in the field and showed me only two small snakes they had killed after a diligent search for more snakes. We took great pains in hanging these snakes on a barbed wire fence so they couldn't fall to the ground, in the hope they would bring enough rain to keep us out of the cotton field. Late that afternoon a small cloud appeared near where the snakes were hanging, and it thundered two or three times, but the cloud soon disappeared after a light sprinkle. Now, if two little snakes had the power to bring on a cloud, thunder and a sprinkle, what would eight or ten snakes hung up in like manner have done to the weather? Unquestionably they would have brought on a big rain and probably put Cave Creek again out of its banks.

Double-Crossed

The only time it ever failed to rain that I know of—after hanging up a dozen or more snakes—was during one awful dry spell. It was the same day the good people of Cave Creek had gathered at the old brush arbor to pray for rain. In order to help break up this devastating drouth, a crowd of us boys went down the creek and killed about two dozen snakes, hanging them in conspicuous places on fences and low-growing shrubs; then we quietly returned to the arbor where they were singing and praying. Of course, we boys expected every minute to hear thunder and see lightning, but not a cloud appeared on the horizon that day or the next day. We couldn't account for this lack of co-operation on the part of the elements until we found out that the Hawkins and Hodge boys had sneaked around and knocked all the snakes down to the ground. You could kill a hundred snakes and leave them on the ground and they would have no effect on the weather, but hang 'em up and you get results. These boys knocked our snakes down out of pure spite because we wouldn't associate with them on account of their bad reputations and the poor social standing of their families.

Proof Beyond Doubt

I know some fellows who will say that you could hang up a thousand snakes and it would have no bearing on the weather. But what about the big overflow I have so vividly described and the two small snakes that made it thunder?

To all who doubt these two stories I have told and want to do the fair thing, let me say this: If they can spare the time and expense of the trip, I will take them to the very spot where Hoge Dug-gins' wash-pot landed during that big downpour; I will show them the ruins of old Tom Spencer's chimney (the man whose pups were drowned) and, as further proof, will point out the field where I was working when the two boys brought the little snakes that made it thunder but didn't make it rain much.

Of course, it might be possible that snakes would have no influence on weather in the dust-storm area of the West, but in my opinion they would have as much influence on the weather as a lot of trees that were planted there and would cost a blame sight less.

"Hang 'em up and you get results."

Thieves in the form of ravens have been raiding watermelon patches in Lynn county. J. M. Texas, second State in the Union in gasoline production, has 121 operating plants with a total capacity of 2,736,000 gallons of gasoline daily. California is first and Oklahoma third. The three States account for 84 per cent of the natural gas production in the entire United States, says the Bureau of Mines.

FINDS PAIR WOODEN SHOES

Where they came from or to whom they belong is a mystery, but A. Stevens, farmer living north of Centerville, Leon county, found a pair of wooden shoes that some wearer had left in the attic of a house he now occupies.

Wooden shoes are popular footwear in some European countries. Hollanders wear wooden shoes almost exclusively.

FREAK LIGHTNING BOLT

The Fredericksburg Standard prints this news item about a bolt of lightning: "While a crew of eight men were busy shearing goats at the Stieler ranch, near Comfort, a bolt of lightning struck a line wire leading from the ranch light plant to the goat shed and killed two goats that two of the crew were shearing. None of the shearers was killed by the bolt, but several were severely shocked."

FATHER AND SON UNITED AFTER 65 YEARS

J. B. Bobbit, age 65, recently met his father for the first time in nearly 65 years. The two were separated when the son was an infant. Bobbit, in the search for his father, heard of an aged man named Uncle Dick Bobbitt living near San Augustine, Texas. He visited him, and a check of records verified their relationship. They had lived within 100 miles of each other for 25 years.

NATIVE MOSS FACTORY

A unique industry for Texas was the recent opening of a moss factory at Edna. The moss, which grows abundantly on trees in that section, will be processed by special machinery. It is used in the manufacture of mattresses, upholstery and for decorative effects.

LETS THE WORLD GO BY

George Glenn, 77 years old, lives serenely on his farm, near Kirbyville, and lets the world go by. He has never been more than 20 miles from home, he says, and has never seen a moving picture show or ridden a train outside of Jasper county. When he has trading to do he either walks or hitches up his team and drives to Kirbyville. He was born in Newton county, Texas.

NEW PAPER MILL

Houston's new paper mill, under construction on the Ship Channel, near Pasadena, is expected to start production early in 1937. It is estimated the annual payroll will be around $720,000, and that 500 men will be employed. The mill will manufacture bleached kraft paper of high quality. The raw material, in form of pine wood, will come from East Texas.

WORLD'S DEEPEST OIL PRODUCER

Brazoria county, Texas, lays claim to the world's deepest oil producer with completion, September 12, of the Abercrombie and Harrison No. 1 Armstrong Plantation well at 9,963 feet in the Old Ocean field. The well was completed for 13 barrels an hour. Other wells have been drilled deeper in Texas and California, but none of them, it is said, were consistent oil producers.

477 NEW TEXAS SCHOOL BUILDINGS

A school building program, to include 477 new school buildings in 133 counties of the State, representing a total cost of $30,000,000 and accommodating 150,000 pupils, has been announced by Julian Montgomery, State Director of PWA funds. The majority of the buildings have been completed and work on the incomplete buildings is going forward rapidly, says Montgomery.

DEATH OF NOTED SHERIFF AND MAN HUNTER

James S. Scarborough, Sr., former sheriff of Lee and Kleberg counties and former special Texas ranger, died August 26th at Kingsville, from a heart attack.

Scarborough figured in many man hunts and criminal investigations in South Texas. Some of the men he captured were sent to the penitentiary; others he killed outright in gun battles.

A STRANGE ANOMALY

It is said that about 3,000,000 persons in Texas are dependent upon cotton for a livelihood. While Texas produces 33 per cent of all the cotton in the United States, less than 3 per cent of the crop is used by Texas cotton mills in the manufacture of cloth. With all its cotton and wool Texas can clothe itself and with all its wheat, corn, vegetables, fruits, cattle, sheep and hogs Texas can feed itself, but fails to do either.

VALUES OF STATE'S METALS

The Bureau of Mines reported that Texas produced, in 1935, 72,222 tons of ore, yielding, in terms of recovered metals, 528 fine ounces gold, 1,000,960 fine ounces of silver, 28,000 pounds of copper and 1,043,000 pounds of lead, valued, in all, at $781,614. The 1934 valuation of recoverable metals was $593,828.

Bureau statisticians estimated the 1935 crude oil production in Texas was 10,000,000 barrels higher than 1934, all the increase coming from outside the East Texas pool. Texas crude oil production in 1935 exceeded that of any other one State, totaling 391,097,000 barrels, and is figured at an average price of $1 per barrel.

BUST OF DAVID CROCKETT

A 102-year-old bust of David Crockett, who was killed defending the Alamo, has been placed in the Texas Centennial Hall of State. The bust, executed by the famous American sculptor, John Frazee, in 1834, bears Crockett's autograph at the time it was finished.

Starr and Travis were law partners at San Felipe, then the capital of Texas.

THIS HITCH-HIKER HAD MONEY

The Plainview Herald published the following about a hitch-hiker:

"When driving along a country road, A. T. Webb, Lamesa auto dealer, picked up a fellow who 'thumbed' a ride. As they rode together, Webb extolled the qualities of his automobile.

"So impressive was his sales talk that when the two reached Lamesa, the hitch-hiker bought an automobile from Webb, paying cash for it."

Great Sons of Texas

GEORGE B. ERATH

George B. Erath, a German emigrant, 23 years of age, enlisted in Billingsley's company at Bastrop, Texas, in 1836, and fought in the Battle of San Jacinto. During the battle Erath's gun jammed, but he seized the gun of his comrade, Lemuel Blakey, who had been killed at the first charge, and continued to shoot down Mexicans until the battle was over. There were several other nationalities that fought on the side of Texas in the Battle of San Jacinto, including Irish, English, French and even a few loyal Mexicans.

WOMAN PIONEER RECEIVES B. A. DEGREE AT 76

She graduated with high honors from Baylor University at Old Independence, Washington county, in 1874. Later, in 1932, she received her B. A. Degree from the same college. Her hobby is the collection of old laces. She owns one piece of lace from the bed canopy of Princess Sophia, daughter of a former king of Prussia.

$400,000 ALLOCATED SAN ANTONIO

Of the $400,000 allocated to San Antonio by the U. S. Texas Centennial Commission, in connection with the State Centennial celebration, $100,000 is for a cenotaph to Texas heroes; $100,000 for a memorial to pioneers, trail drivers and rangers; $75,000 for repair to the Alamo building; $6,200 for an amphitheatre, and $20,000 for repair of San Jose mission built in 1731. San Jose is the most beautiful of all the old missions in and around San Antonio. It is noted for elaborate carvings by the celebrated sculptor, Juan Huica, who was sent to Texas by the King of Spain to execute the carved designs.

AN OUTSTANDING PIONEER WOMAN

Near Bluffdale, in Erath county, lives Mrs. M. O. Keahey, an outstanding pioneer woman. Born on the banks of Sulphur river, 10 miles north of Greenville, Texas, in 1849, Mrs. Keahey is 87 years old.

For 67 years she has lived continuously in the log cabin, near Bluffdale, which she and her husband built in 1869.

Mrs. Keahey works industriously at "keeping house" and her health is good for a woman of 87. Her eyesight is failing, yet she can still shoot a rifle with accuracy. Living far out on the frontier when Indians raided the settlements, it became necessary for Mrs. Keahey to learn to shoot well in order to protect her family when Mr. Keahey would be absent from home on business.

OWNS BIBLE PRINTED IN 1598

A Bible, printed in London in 1598, is owned by Mrs. Kerr Riggs, of Fort Brown, Cameron county, Texas. This Bible is somewhat different from the King James version in that it includes Books of the Apocrypha, which are left out of the present day Bibles. Before his death, Mrs. Riggs' father was a collector of rare books and he obtained the old Bible soon after the war between the States.

THORN IN FLESH 43 YEARS

Folks have carried bullets imbedded in their flesh for a lifetime, but here is a man who carried a thorn in his flesh 43 years, says the Port Arthur News. His name is D. J. Russell and he lives at 1120 Procter Street, Port Arthur. A recent surgical operation removed the one and one-half inch thorn, which had produced a wound in the ankle, that at intervals, over a period of 43 years, had caused Mr. Russell much pain and discomfort.

94-YEAR-OLD FARMER

G. K. Wilson, 94 years old, who owns a 150-acre farm near Ballinger, is proud of the fact that he has farmed all his life. He came to Texas from Mississippi in 1873, served 4 years in the Confederacy, and was in the Battle of Lookout Mountain, near Chattanooga, Tenn. He reads newspapers without glasses and spends part of the time fishing and working in his field. His recipe for long life is: "Mind your own business and keep in good humor."

200,000 INDIAN FLINT PIECES

Dr. Alex Dienst, State historian and collector of relics, has on exhibition at Temple one of the world's largest Indian flint collections. Included in the collection are 200,000 flint pieces of arrow heads, spear points, axes, tomahawks, etc. Doctor Dienst says that 90 per cent of the flint fossils came from Indian camping grounds within a radius of 50 miles of Temple. He has discovered and classified 300 of these camping grounds in western Bell county.

THREE LOCAL CITIZENS OVER 90 YEARS OLD

Wolfe City, Hunt county, must be a healthful place in which to live. According to the Wolfe City Sun there are three citizens of this town who are over 90 years old. Their names and ages are: Mrs. Mollie Setzler, 92 years of age; Mrs. A. A. Shields, 95; J. R. Westbrook, 93. All three were born near each other. Mrs. Shields and Mr. Westbrook were born near Spring Garden, Alabama, and Mrs. Setzler near Rome, Georgia. These two towns are about 30 miles apart.

STATE INCOME DIVERTED TO RETIRE RELIEF BONDS

Income of Texas during the next three months will be diverted to pay interest and maturity on Texas relief bonds, issued in 1934.

The act allowing issuance of the $20,000,000 in bonds provides that the first income of the State during the fiscal year shall be applied to the bonds, Comptroller George H. Sheppard said. The interest rate, amounting to $561,535.75, varies from 2½ to 4 per cent.

BIRD FARM

Brownsville, in the Rio Grande Valley, has many kinds of farms, including W. A. King's snake farm, but now it points with pride to a bird farm, owned by Mrs. Paul Springman. The farm, after one year of operation, has proved a financial success, says the Houston Chronicle. Mrs. Springman is shipping birds to all parts of the United States. She raises singing and talking birds. Most of the singing birds are canaries, although she raises bugle birds, which sing much like a mocking bird. Mrs. Springman's parrot family includes a wide range—tiny parakeets and love birds predominating. But there are other tiny birds, such as creepers, tangers, finches and honey birds. Her breeding stocks are imported mainly from Australia, South America and the Philippines.

REPRODUCING OLD FORT PARKER

Under direction of the State Board of Control, with an appropriation of $10,000, old Fort Parker, in Limestone county, is being reproduced and is expected to be ready for dedication in about six weeks. Fort Parker, including its stockade and block houses, was originally built a century ago by pioneers as a fortress against Indian attacks, but on May 19, 1836, 600 Comanche and Kiowa Indians attacked and partly destroyed the fort, killing many of its occupants. Among those killed were John Parker, Benjamin Parker and Silas Parker.

Cynthia Ann Parker, then 10 years old, was captured by these Indians at the time Fort Parker fell and later became the wife of Pete Nocona, noted Comanche chief, who was killed by ex-Governor Sul Ross in the Battle of Pease river, a battle fought near Crowell, Texas, between rangers, under Capt. Sul Ross and the Comanches.

THIEF ROBS CHURCH

A thief entered St. David's Church, at Austin, and stole an amethyst ring from a crucifix on the altar of the church. The thief attempted to get some other jewels out of the cross, but was routed by Miss Julia Taylor, church secretary.

FIRES CAUSED BY CIGARETTE AND CIGAR STUBS

Harry Hines, chairman of the State Highway Commission, has asked motorists to please be careful in throwing lighted cigarettes and cigars from speeding automobiles. Many fields, pastures and trees along highways have been destroyed by fire due to cast off lighted cigarette and cigar stubs, he says.

TRIBUTE TO MAKER OF LONE STAR FLAG

Texas and Georgia joined September 1st in paying tribute to Joanna Troutman, the Georgia girl, who made the Texas Lone Star flag 100 years ago and presented it to a Georgia battalion enroute to Texas to fight in the war for Texas independence. Miss Troutman's body was removed from Elmwood, Crawford county, Georgia, in 1913, and re-interred in the State cemetery at Austin. Her grave is marked by a bronze statue and granite pedestal.

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR TEXAS

Horace Akin, University of Texas graduate in philosophy, after experimenting with the Texas cactus for years at Dallas is using it as a raw material for the manufacture of canes, gavels, handbags, fans, vases and other articles. Every product is made directly from the stalks and leaves—or joints—of the cactus. Two types of cactus are used mainly by Akin in making his products—prickly pear and cholla. The patent application for the process is pending.

One of these cactus canes was presented to President Roosevelt.

A UNIQUE STORE

For 22 years A. D. Purvis has operated the most unique store in Texas. The store is located at Waller, Waller county. Purvis calls his store "God's Mercy Store," and it is conducted on the basis of freewill offerings, that is, he claims all merchandise is sold at cost and the purchaser can add any amount, be it ever so small, to the cost price as a freewill offering. If the purchaser chooses not to add one cent to the cost price, this is all right with Purvis—he treats the customer courteously. The following placard is prominently displayed on a wall of the store:

"All goods in this store are sold to you at cost, nothing added as profit to the store. The store is kept by freewill offerings. Anything you add to your purchase is received with thanks."

86,765 EMPLOYED ON TEXAS WPA JOBS

A total of 23,003 women have secured work on various WPA projects in Texas, being 26.5% of the total of such jobs for men and women in the State, according to figures released by W. Williams, Deputy Administrator. There were 86,765 persons employed all told.

Women were employed by majorities in educational and durable goods projects, and in canning and sewing projects. They were used in varying degrees of percentage in various professional and clerical jobs, including library and planning projects, research and statistical work, art, writing and recreational activities. The average for women employed by the WPA for the country as a whole was 16%. Men received more money than women as a national average, but in Texas the average for men was $30.00 monthly and for women $32.50 monthly.

FIELD DEMONSTRATION OF NEW MECHANICAL COTTON PICKER

Much interest is manifested throughout the cotton belt in Rust Bros. mechanical cotton picker, a machine pulled by tractor power, that picks cotton lint from open bolls by the revolving spindle process on an endless belt.

A recent field demonstration of how the machine works was made August 31st at Stoneville, Miss. This demonstration was seen by Oscar Johnston, manager of the world's largest cotton plantation in the Mississippi Delta. Herewith is his opinion of the machine's practicability for picking cotton: "The machine seems basically sound, but much improvement is needed before it is successful." He even suggested that breeders will have to develop a special type of cotton for the machine to pick and gins will have to install cleaning devices to remove the "unusual amount of trash" the machine gathers along with the cotton lint.

It is generally admitted that in rainy seasons a picker pulled by a tractor might not be able to get into the cotton field at all.

OUR CHILDREN

Moulding Their Lives

One day a middle-aged woman said to me, "No matter how hard I try I don't seem to make my children the kind of folk I want them to be. I have done everything in the world for them I know how to do; yet they are lazy and indifferent. What can I do?"

Of course, it would have been unwise for me to tell this mother the truth about her trouble; she would only have been angry with me. It is very difficult to direct the life of another. So politely I told her, "That is a very big problem." And so it is.

However, for the conscientious mother the answer is obvious.

But for this middle-aged woman three things are wrong:

First, we never can make the other person "what" we want him or her to be. We can only aid in bringing out best qualities and helping to correct weak characteristics.

Secondly, this mother is trying to live "for" her children and not "with" them.

Third, she has failed to show her children how to give as well as take.

The highest and happiest vocation for any woman is the one nature created for her—successful motherhood. To fulfill this mission she must "live with" her children; not leave their guidance to hired hands. It is in every day life—the work and play of the child—that the right attitude and understanding of life is made a part of its very soul. Only the intelligent and sympathetic mother can discover the sterling qualities in her children and help develop them to a high degree.

It is a mistake to try to mould a child into the kind of person we WANT it to be, rather than the kind it is best fitted to be. Disposition and personal characteristics are the bed-rock of personality. Mothers who try to make a tom-boy girl into a clinging vine should expect failure. It can't be done. Success comes only through developing the child's individual characteristics. The understanding mother will bring out the rugged, honest qualities of her tom-boy daughter, even though her heart yearns for the other type. By smoothing here and rounding there she can mould her daughter into a finished, attractive woman. So it is with every type—we must strive to bring out and develop the good points.

There is a vast difference between living WITH our children and FOR them. Think how unfortunate is one who, shielded from every blow, is suddenly thrust out into the world to sink or swim. Such an one is like a frail flower, without strength or endurance to meet the test.

When we live with our children we lead instead of driving them. This leading begins in the little things of daily life. Our example becomes a standard of conduct to our children. Children who believe that someone else should bear their burdens suffer an unfortunate handicap. Only those who have proved their mettle through personal effort can live the full life. Being able to "take it on the chin" is a priceless possession to any man or woman.

To help our children make their own decisions is harder and more complicated than to make decisions for them. We must let our loved ones bump their noses (so to speak) for them to understand a situation more clearly. Yet we must stand-by and encourage—if necessary lift them up until they learn well their lesson. In your own way ponder this thought.

"LIVE WITH your children and NOT for them."

The door-mat mother also defeats her children as well as herself. You know her type. She neither leads nor drives. She sacrifices her life for the welfare of her children—and they let her do it without a protest—even expecting it. She washes, cooks and sews morning, noon and night—is a veritable slave. Sometimes the children lie in bed until 10 or 11 a. m. She imagines herself the "Glorified Mother." What a tragedy. But surely no one is to blame but the subservient mother.

The father of this family is just a source of supply—a provider of the selfish wants of the whole outfit. Everything in the home is subject to the will of the children. They are lords of the household.

Then one day this mother feels the bitterness of defeat and cries out in anguish, "They don't appreciate me!" Poor thing.

GOOD RECIPES

Here are some delectable recipes to whet the appetite and satisfy the hunger. Try them.

Eggs Poached in Milk

Scald 3 cups milk in double boiler. Break 6 eggs in a saucer and slip into buttered muffin tins or egg poachers. Pour hot milk over each egg. Add salt and pepper and a dot of butter to each egg. Cook in a slow oven (300 Fahrenheit) until eggs are firm. Lift out carefully onto slices of toast. Dot each egg with butter and garnish with broiled bacon. Any milk left in pan may be poured around toast. Very nourishing.

Grape-Nuts Baked Custard

1/3 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups milk
2 eggs slightly beaten.

5 tablespoons grape-nuts.
Add sugar, salt, vanilla and milk to eggs. Put a tablespoon grape-nuts in each custard cup and pour in custard mixture. Place cups in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 Fahrenheit) 35 minutes, or until a knife inserted comes out clean.

Winter Salads

Too often we think of the salad as being a summer dish. This, very distinctly, is erroneous. Salads should occupy a conspicuous place on the year-around menu. Salads supply important food elements, including vitamins. Here are a few suggestions for winter salads.

Orange and Raisin

Arrange segments from 1 orange in flower-petal pattern. Place 1 large raisin on tip of each segment. Center with a few raisins and serve with whipped cream.

Apple Orange

Alternate halved orange slices with wedge shaped pieces of unpeeled red-skinned apples. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Mixed Fruit Salad

Mix orange segments, diced apple, raisins, sliced banana and stoned and chopped dates with mayonnaise and cream. Serve on lettuce if possible.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

One of the most distressing problems of the housekeeper is stains on clothing or household articles.

To help solve this perplexing problem we list some common stains and give simple methods to remove them:

Coffee—Soak in boiling water. Egg—Soak in cold water.

Grease—Warm water and soap—gasoline for very heavy stains. Ink—Dilute oxalic acid followed immediately by a thorough rinsing.

Medicine—Soak in cold water. If no response, soak in alcohol. Iron rust—Soak in lemon juice, sprinkle generously with salt and let stand in the sun.

Blood—Soak in tepid water. Paint—Gasoline or turpentine. Alcohol for lacquer.

Fruit—Soak in boiling water. Tea—Soak in cold water. Chocolate or Cocoa—Soak in cold water and soap.

Mildew—For a fresh stain, wash with soap and water and dry in sun. Older stain—soak in javelle water followed by a thorough rinsing and hang in sun.

PREDICTS A MAJOR EARTHQUAKE

Look out for earthquakes in the near future! That is the warning sounded by Armand W. Forstall, S. J., head of the seismological station at Regis College, Denver, Colorado.

Forstall bases his prediction on the abnormally small number of minor earthquakes recorded by seismographs in recent months. The earth is constantly shifting inside, he said, and if it can't do it by degrees, it will build up such a strain that a major earthquake will occur when the shift does take place.

Earthquakes are caused by tremors set up in the earth by the sudden slipping of many cubic miles of rock along a fissure, or fault.

The most disastrous earthquake of history was that in India, in 1737, which took 300,000 lives. The most violent one of modern times occurred in China in 1920. Accompanied by devastating landslides, it snuffed out 200,000 souls in a few seconds. The San Francisco and Tokio earthquakes in 1906 and 1923, respectively, were mild, compared to these.

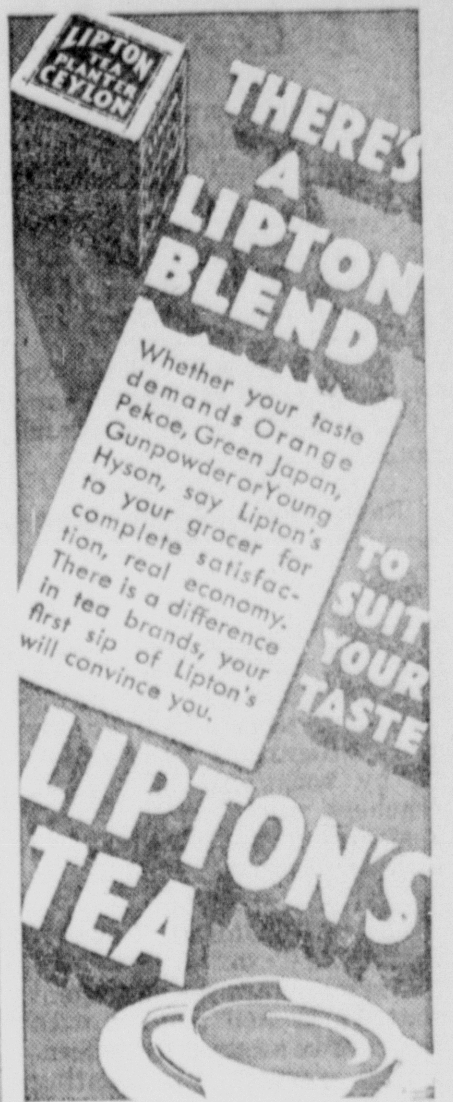

WHAT IS A "BILLION"?

Until the World War had to be financed, the word "billion" was used chiefly in astronomy.

During the last two decades, however, we see the word constantly but few among us realize what a billion is. Perhaps no one can.

Suppose a billion dollars were delivered to a citizen in one-dollar bills with the promise that it would be his as soon as he had counted it.

Assuming that the citizen would work eight hours per day and count 500 of the bills every minute, it would take about 13 years to finish the job.

DEEP, DEEP DOWN

An animal which can live for years without eating has just been placed on exhibit at the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. It is the olm, one of the three known species of cave salamanders.

Found only in the deep, lightless caves of Europe, the creature has a snake-like body about a foot long. Its four legs are set widely apart and are almost useless. This doesn't bother the olm, for it is one of the most sluggish animals known, spending most of its life lying motionless upon a rock ledge, or among the stones at the bottom of a stream.

With the exception of its gills, which are red, the olm is perfectly white, but if exposed to the sun will turn jet black. The eyes, since it does not need them, have degenerated and are completely hidden under the skin.

The other two cave salamanders are the "Ozarkian" found in the caves of Missouri and Arkansas, and the "Texan" found in underground rivers of Texas. The latter was discovered when it was shot to the surface by an artesian well.

RADIO CHIEF

At the age of 15, David Sarnoff was just an office boy for the Marconi Wireless Company. At 46, David Sarnoff is president of the Radio Corporation of America—the Marconi Company's successor and parent organization of National Broadcasting Company.

As a newsboy, Mr. Sarnoff used to dodge the wintry winds whipping through New York's Herald Square by going into the old Herald building where a telegraph company had offices. He pleaded for, and got, a messenger job.

He had to support his mother and four younger brothers and sisters. His father had died shortly after bringing the family from Russia. But young David saved enough money to buy a telegraph set. Within six months, he was an expert operator.

With small chance of getting immediate work as an operator with the telegraph company, he tried the newly-formed Marconi Wireless Company. The chief engineer smiled at the youth's request for a job as operator. He offered him an office boy job. The youngster took it and in a few months he was junior telegraph operator.

In this new field of wireless—now radio—were opportunities galore for energetic young men. But they had to know the subject. And David Sarnoff had no technical education.

The Marconi Company maintained a wireless station on Nantucket Island, Mass. It was a forgotten place with no amusements, no diversions, but one of the best radio libraries in the country. Ambitious David Sarnoff asked to be sent there.

In two years he had read every book in the library. Then he returned to New York. Night work, day school and work as operator on an Arctic sealing ship, filled several years.

April 14, 1912, found David Sarnoff on duty in the radio station of a New York department store. Suddenly an SOS cracked on his instrument. The "S. S. Titanic" was sinking! For 72 hours he stuck to his post and was the country's sole news source for the disaster.

After that, the former newsboy's climb was rapid. When the Marconi Company was absorbed by Radio Corporation of America in 1919, David Sarnoff was Marconi's commercial manager. With RCA he has continued his climb.

Below medium height, with a round and often smiling face, RCA's chief is proud of his climb, but doesn't boast of it.

Directors of the Border Stock Raisers' Protective Association, in a meeting at the Pryor ranch, near LaPryor, August 20, adopted resolutions asking that laws be passed authorizing the State Highway Commission to construct a fence along the Rio Grande between Texas and Mexico. Such a fence, the resolution points out: "Would serve to hinder smuggling along the Mexican border, retard the entering of aliens into the United States and retard the smuggling of livestock into the United States which livestock is infected with contagious and infectious diseases."

The Uvalde section, one of Texas' largest native pecan-producing areas, will produce only a 10 to 15 per cent pecan crop, according to estimates by local pecan experts.

During that period 754 farms were sold by the Federal Land Bank of Houston, many ranches and stock farms, of course, being included in the lot. These transactions involved amounts totaling over $1,600,000. In addition to these transactions, the Federal Land Bank, acting for itself and as agent for the Land Bank Commissioner, is said to be extending credit to tenants and young farmers about to start out for themselves, to enable them to purchase farms of their own.

Camels add zest to meals—aid digestion—increase alkalinity

RUSH and mental strain impede digestion by slowing down the flow of the digestive fluids so necessary to proper, smooth digestion. Smoking Camels assists digestion by increasing the flow of the alkaline digestive fluids in a pleasant and natural way.

The Harvest

DEAR FRIENDS:

As the fading green leaves fall, one by one, from the trees, turning to a dull brown as they form a blanket for Mother Earth, we know by these signs that fall is here and the harvest is on. In some places the yield was bountiful of earth's riches; in other places the tiny plants came up, thrived for a short time only, withered and died for lack of moisture. This is the picture of the 1936 autumnal harvest—to a few it is enough, to many others disappointing and devastating.

While looking at the harvest of the earth, we are reminded of the harvest of minds and hearts. Did you ever think about many things you learn every day at home and in school as a "harvest"? However, that is what it really is. It is the greatest harvest in the world—a harvest of the mind—with which we mould and shape our future lives. So it is up to each of us to plant the right kind of seeds (good deeds and clean thoughts) and then to go about our business of learning how to do the right thing. I am confident that most boys and girls are anxious to have the right kind of harvest, and a bountiful one, as well.

I wish every reader, young and old, of this newspaper would read the Boys' and Girls' Page carefully. They will note that this month we are starting some new and very interesting plans. We want all of you to join in and make this (your page) the best in the whole Southwest. I hope you will tell your friends about the many wonderful things we are planning for our boys and girl friends. I am sure they will be interested.

Goodbye, until next month, when we will drop in again for a friendly chat. Hoping to see you and many new friends.

Let's Draw

It is going to be great sport

Such funny lines to draw,

You know I think this elephant

The best I ever saw!

most interesting stories about Daniel, God's writing upon the Palace wall, is not so widely known.

The kingdom of Nebuchadnezzar was made up of many small kingdoms which he had conquered; and during his life they were very strong and represented the greatest power in the world at that time. However, after the death of Nebuchadnezzar his son, Belshazzar, became king and the kingdom began falling to pieces.

Belshazzar lived a wicked and sinful life. Instead of thinking how he might rule and guide his country for the good of his people, he spent most of his time in riotous eating and drinking, satisfying his personal greed and lust.

Cyrus, who had become the leader of the Kingdoms of Media and Persia, led a great army against Belshazzar. The people of Babylon were dissatisfied with Belshazzar and secretly opened the gates of the city for Cyrus and his army to enter.

One night when Belshazzar was holding a great feast and he and his court were drunk with wine, Cyrus surrounded the Palace.

While Belshazzar and his court were celebrating, a strange thing happened. On one of the walls of the Palace a great hand appeared, writing letters, which none of them could understand. You may be sure, they were very much frightened as the hand slowly traced the words, but wine had made them stupid. The king sent for all his wise men and, try as they would, they could not understand the strange words.

Daniel was now an old man; since the death of Nebuchadnezzar he was almost forgotten by the court. At last, Belshazzar thought of him and how he had interpreted the dream of his father; so the king sent for Daniel, and he came unto him.

The king offered Daniel great reward if he would tell him the meaning of the words written on the wall.

Daniel answered, "You may keep your reward for I do not want it; but I will read you the writing. Oh, king, you know, that when the most High God gave this kingdom to your father, he became proud and boastful, then the Lord took from him crown and kingdom and let him live among the beasts of the field for seven years. Thou, Belshazzar, knew this, yet you have not humbled your heart. You have desecrated the things of God, and honored false gods. For this reason, God has sent a hand to write the words: 'Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin.' And the meaning is, 'NUMBERED, NUMBERED, WEIGHED, DIVIDED.'

"Mene: God has counted the years of your kingdom and has brought it to an end.

"Tekel: You have been weighed in the balance and found wanting.

"Upharsin: Your kingdom is divided and taken from you, given to the Medes and the Persians."

The king could hardly believe what he heard, yet he ordered the reward given to Daniel. Then, while he was still speaking, the Persians and the Medes burst into the Palace, seizing Belshazzar and killing him in the midst of the feast.

That night saw the start of a new kingdom. The first had been the Assyrian kingdom, having Nineveh for its capital. The second was the Babylonian or Chaldean kingdom. The third was the Persian kingdom, which lasted 200 years, ruling all the lands named in the Bible.

Poems That Live

Here is a lovely poem, written by a woman who is confined to her bed. The beauty of her spirit shines through the words.

MY SKIES ARE NOT ALWAYS BLUE AND GOLD

My skies are not always blue and gold,

My way not always bright;

Sometimes my skies are turned to gray

With sorrow's clouds of night.

'Tis then I follow close my Guide

Till the light again I see;

For I know that my Redeemer lives,

And that's enough for me!

I'm grateful for each tint of blue,

And for each streak of gold;

For the rainbow's lovely colors

That are glorious to behold.

And when the shadows o'er me fall,

Lord, let me walk with Thee,

And know that my Redeemer cares,

That's good enough for me!

If all our skies were blue and gold—

If all our days were bright,

We'd miss the sunsets lovely hue

And the rainbow's color bright.

There's always blue above the gray,

Could we but only see;

I know that my Redeemer lives,

And that's enough for me!

GOLD LEAFING

The dome of Napoleon's tomb in Paris, the Invalides, is being regilded. No less than 253,000 gold leaves will be required to cover the dome, which is almost a half acre in extent. The leaves are so thin and light that they can be applied only in very settled weather. Otherwise the wind would blow them away.

Gold, most malleable of all metals, can be hammered out so thin that a purplish light comes through it. The metal is first melted and cast into flat oblong ingots. The ingot is then passed between rollers until it is so thin that 800 thickness of it would be required to make an inch.

This is next cut up into pieces an inch square, which the gold beater hammers out into pieces four inches square. This is again cut up and beaten as before, and then beaten again.

By this time the leaf is so thin that it would take more than 200,000 of them to make an inch. The leaves are then trimmed to 3½ inches square and put between the leaves of little books until used.

HOMES ON WHEELS

A thousand trailers, carrying 3,000 people, turned up at the recent "tin can" tourists' outing at Sandusky, Ohio, from all parts of the country.

This showing, impressive as it was, represented only a small fraction of the 100,000 people who are touring the United States, year in and year out, moving like the nomads of old to places with the best climate and scenery, in their "homes on wheels."

Trailers used to be little more than crude boxes on wheels. But the modern trailer, which can be bought on the installment plan like an auto, is an elaborate, streamlined affair with all the comforts of home, including beds, refrigerator, bath, sink and stove. Thousands of retired couples and others know no other home.

With trailers, buses and trucks in increasing numbers taking to the highways, about all that is left for the ordinary passenger motorist is to squeeze around or in between them. Sudden death rides the highways.

ENERGY!

ACTIVE people are always "on-the-go".

They expend a great amount of energy in both work and play. Their bodies need Dextrose to replenish the energy expended.

Dextrose, the food energy sugar, forms the quickest and most direct means of supplying energy to the body for proper functioning of the vital organs, the mind and muscles.

KARO is rich in Dextrose. During the past 15 years this popular table syrup has become an outstanding food for infants and for growing children. Of course KARO continues to be the Nation's favorite syrup as a spread for pancakes, waffles, hot bread, biscuits, etc.

Karo is sold by every good grocer throughout America.

A LITTLE FUN Jokes to Make You Laugh

That Urge

We really must get a new car, John. "What—when we're still paying installments on the car I exchanged for the car I sold in part payment for the car we've got now?"

Greatly Oblige

A note to Johnny's teacher read: "Please excuse Johnny's absence yesterday. He fell in the ditch and got his pants muddy. By doing the same you will greatly oblige his mother."

Unsophisticated

Mrs. Green—I want to open an account with your bank.

Cashier—How much do you want to deposit?

Mrs. Green—Why, nothing. I want to borrow $50.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Question: I have been trying various scents of perfume to land my best beau, but fragrance doesn't seem to work. What would you advise?—Anxious Subscriber.

Answer: You have a good idea, but you are following the wrong scent. If you'll try the alluring aroma of ham and eggs and a cup of good coffee, Romeo should run true to form.

Forewarned

Recently the young son of a Columbia University professor spent the weekend on a dairy farm where he acquired considerable knowledge. Upon his return he related his experiences to a friend. "If you ever go to a farm, Jimmie," he cautioned, "and you see a big cow off to herself, in a stall behind bars, and she has a ring in her nose and don't have any faucets, she's a bull and you'd better keep clear away from her."

Need a Durable One

A poverty-stricken backwoodsman had become the father of his tenth child. The cradle in which the child lay had served its purpose for nine preceding children and its rockers were so far gone there was no more rock in them.

"Guess we gotta get a new cradle, Jim," said the wife with a plaintive sigh. "This one's erbout all used up." Jim looked over the dilapidated crib that was ready to fall apart.

"I guess you're right, Sal," he drawled. "I guess we gotta get a new one. Here's two dollars. Next time you go to town, get one at the store—but this time get one that will last."

Pat's Apology

Pat met several old cronies from Ireland, who had recently emigrated to New York and, before he realized his condition, was somewhat intoxicated.

Returning home late in the afternoon, he saw a strange parrot sitting on the top of his garage. He climbed up to get it.

The parrot looked him in the eye and said: "Whadde h—l do you want?"

Pat bowed, backed away and apologized as follows: "Sorry, sir. Begorrah, I thought at fust ye was a bird!"

William's Fame

Mrs. Murphy—There's no living with William any more since he became famous.

Mrs. Newby—I didn't know he had become famous. How did it happen?

Mrs. Murphy—He had his picture printed in the paper telling how he'd been cured by Dr. Groan's liver pills and now he won't do a lick of work.

Hard to Account For

Bessie—"Men sure are funny critters."

Jessie—"What makes you think so now?"

Bessie—"Well, here's a story in the paper about a man who hadn't kissed his wife in five years but he shot a man who did."

Just a Suggestion

Lecturer—"I speak the language of wild animals."

Voice in Rear—"Next time you meet a skunk, ask him what's the big idea."

Conscience-Stricken

"Henrietta," he moaned, "I have deceived you. I married you under false pretenses."

"Why, what on earth do you mean, Henry?" asked Henrietta.

"I didn't save your life at all that time at the beach," he said miserably. "That water was hardly knee-deep."

"Forget it, Henry," said Henrietta. "I had one foot on the bottom all the time I was screaming."

Mother Said No More

Freddy had come in on one of mother's busiest days with his pants torn.

"You go right upstairs and take off your pants and mend them," she ordered.

Some time later she went up to see how he was getting along. The torn pants were lying on a chair but there was no sign of Freddy. Returning downstairs she noticed the door to the basement, usually closed, standing wide open.

"Are you running around down there without your pants on," she called down. "No, madam," a deep bass voice answered. "I'm just reading your gas meter."

He Liked the Blarney

A Louisiana planter was noted as the ugliest but the most lovable man in the State. His brother, after a trip to New Orleans, said to him:

"James, in New Orleans I met a Mrs. Hill who is a great admirer of yours. She said, though, that it wasn't so much your brilliant mind and kindness she liked as your strong, handsome face which charmed and delighted her."

"William," said James earnestly, "that's a lie. But tell it to me again."

A Sob Story

Strolling in the park every evening with a young dog, the man attracted the attention of another man there and one night the two fell into conversation. Talk turned to the dog and the stranger asked the owner if he would take $5 for the dog.

"Five dollars?" said the owner. "Why, this dog belongs to my wife. She'd sob her heart out if I sold this dog." He paused. "But I'll tell you what I'll do. Make it $10 and we'll let her sob."

Comparative Wealth

Wealth is differently estimated in various parts of the country. In the Ozarks lived an old man and his very poor family. His oldest son, a bright lad of 19, wanted to leave the hills and go out in the world to seek a fortune better than he could hope for at home. The old man was trying to talk him out of the idea.

"What chants have I here? There ain't nothin' fer me but bein' poor and dirty all my life," said the son.

"What chants?" asked the old man. "What chants? Look at me, son. When I cum down here from Kentucky I didn't have nothin'. And now look at me. I've got ten chilluns and six good coon dawgs."

Says rollin' your own is sheer pleasure with this tobacco

Poultry News

Drouth Affects Poultry Outlook

A somewhat greater than usual rise in egg prices during the latter half of this year is foreseen by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in its summer Poultry and Egg Outlook. Poultry prices, on the other hand, are expected to decline by more than the usual seasonal amount, due to the increased number of chicks hatched and to the probability that the drouth will lead farmers to sell more chickens than usual because of shorter feed supplies and higher feed prices. The drouth is viewed as a decisive factor in the egg and poultry outlook because of its effect on the feed situation.

Temperature of Eggs

Eggs should be held at a temperature from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Results at the Missouri Station show that eggs held in a basement room where the temperature varied from 45 to 60 degrees, and eggs were more than two weeks old, failed to hatch as well as those one and two weeks old. Temperatures above 60 degrees should be avoided because germ development begins at 68 degrees and at temperature just above freezing the embryos will not survive over six or seven days.

Number of Young Chickens

The number of young chickens available for marketing in the fall of 1936 will be greater than in 1935. Commercial hatcheries report an increase of 25 per cent in the number of salable chicks compared with the same period in 1935. On June 1, 1936, the number of chicks and young chickens in farm flocks was 12 per cent greater than the year before.

It Might Be Worms

Poultrymen agree that the flock of hens that will not average 150 eggs a year is not a profit maker. Worms in poultry are found in most flocks and worm infested hens cannot produce profits. Before you house this year's flock of pullets, be sure to give them a worm treatment. The extra eggs that you get from these pullets will pay for your trouble and expense many times over and may be the means of making your flock profitable with proper care and feeding.

Hatchability

Cockerels produce more fertile eggs than cock birds. From tests conducted at the Missouri Experiment Station it was proven that birds that lay the most eggs produce eggs that hatch best. High egg production and high hatchability are associated, since both are measures of vitality. In most cases, birds that lay very large eggs (26 oz. or over) do not produce eggs of high hatchability. Free range is conducive to best hatching results.

WHY DO FOLKS EVERYWHERE CALL POST TOASTIES "THE BETTER CORN FLAKES"?

Melvin Purvis answers a breakfast-table cross-examination!

Q. Why do Post Toasties taste so good, Mr. Purvis?
A. Because they are made from the sweet, tender little hearts of the corn. And that's where most of the good, rich flavor is stored.
Q. How is it that Post Toasties keep their crunchiness so much longer in milk or cream, Mr. Purvis?
A. Because every golden-brown flake is toasted double crisp... that's one of the secrets of making Post Toasties so good!

Q. Can Post Toasties be served other ways besides with milk or cream?
A. They certainly can! Post Toasties are delicious with fresh, ripe peaches... with berries or in cantaloupe... with any fruits that are in season. And there's another thing: Post Toasties with fruit make a wonderful luncheon—or a cool, refreshing Sunday night supper. You will enjoy crisp, tasty Post Toasties any time!
